AEOLIAN-SKINNER GOES TO NEW BOISE CHURCH

"CATHEDRAL OF THE ROCKIES"

Large Methodist Edifice in Idaho Capital
Dedicated in Series of Services—
David A. Wehr Is Organist and Choirmaster

The new edifice of the First Methodist Church, Boise, Idaho, designed by Harold E. Wagoner, Philadelphia, and Jedd Jones, Boise, and renamed "The Cathedral of the Rockies," was consecrated Jan. 8. David A. Wehr, organist-choirmaster, was responsible for the music at a series of services in which Bishop A. Raymond Grant of the Portland area of the Methodist Church and church officials and the ministers of neighboring churches took part, and at a "legislative" service, a candlelight vesper, in which a former governor of the state, state representatives and the chaplain of the state house of representatives participated.

The church has 11 choral and musical groups with a total membership of more than 650. Mrs. Wehr is in charge of the children's choirs.

The new Aeolian-Skinner organ was designed by Joseph Whiteford, Lawrence Schoenstein and Mr. Wehr. The main organ is divided in chambers on each side of the chancel with an antiphonal division in the rear of the church above the gallery. A hooded Fanfare Trumpet at both 8 and 4 ft. pitches on the great is playable from the choir.

The installation of the instrument was under the direction of Paul Haggard, Oklahoma City. Tonal finishing was completed by Thomas V. Potter. The tonal design is as follows:

BILL HAWKE IN HOSPITAL MENDING FROM INJURIES

H. William Hawke, widely known on both sides of the border between Canada and the United States and the teacher of prominent organists in both countries, is in a hospital with a fractured rib and other complications ("not serious," he says), the second member of the Willan scholarship committee to suffer an accident (the G. K. Drynans are recovering slowly!)

Mr. Hawke, long organist and choirmaster at St. Mark's, Philadelphia, returned to Canada nearly a decade ago. He has been active in both the AGO and the RCCO.

TWO HUNDRED singers took part in the choir festival held Jan. 29 at the East Liberty Presbyterian Church, Pittsburgh.

ELEVENTH CONFERENCE HELD AT NORTHWESTERN

INGRAM, ARNATT HEADLINERS

Milhaud, New Lovelace Heard on Pre-Conference Program—Emphasis on Choir System, Improvisation—Arnatt Recital

The eleventh annual midwinter conference on church music, a popular fixture in the lives of church musicians in the Chicago area, was held this year Feb. 6 and 7 in Lutkin Hall on the Evanston campus of Northwestern University. The admirable flexibility with which these conferences are planned means not only that no two of them are alike but that no two even serve the same portion of the complete church music picture.

Last year with André Marchal as distinguished guest, the meeting revolved about his recitals and master classes and the emphasis was completely organ.

Two years ago the conference was held in conjunction with a church conference, serving entirely different needs.

This year two emphases dominated the conference, aspects of the comprehensive choir system and the use and need for an adequate improvisation technique for the realization of an integrated, cohesive church service. These two facets were suitably represented by Madeline Ingram, Lynchburg, Va. College, and Ronald Arnatt, Christ Church Cathedral, St. Louis.

Without such an overwhelming name as Marchal to attract visitors, the conference was not as well attended this year, and only comparatively neighboring states were represented. A total registration of 112 included Northwestern students and many church musicians from the Chicago area. An exchange student from Nigeria could hardly qualify among those making journeys expressly for the meeting.

Pre-Conference Program

Following a long precedent, a Sunday evening choral event, this time at the First Methodist Church, Evanston, foreshadowed the conference. Not enlisting orchestra nor such extensive choral resources as last year, it provided again its usual opportunity to make acquaintance with worthy works not often heard.

Two works were programmed in this midwinter festival concert. Rabbi Herman E. Schaalmann and Cantor Robert Handwerker of Temple Emanuel, Chicago, were guest participants and William Ballard was conductor in Darius Milhaud's Sabbath Morning Service. The work, with much linear rather than choral writing, was sung well by the combined university a cappella choir and the church choir. The fine narration of the rabbi and the highly characteristic singing of the cantor added greatly to the flavor of the performance of this striking work.

Austin Lovelace conducted a first performance of his own new cantata, Job of Uz, just published by Canyon Press. Six soloists and Timothy Cahill at the organ aided the choirs in a creditable presentation of this interesting and effective new work. The work of a brass octet was not always impeccable but on the whole it was an addition likely to be used in many future performances of the cantata. The work's climaxes are well realized; the text is a little on the wordy side.

Improvisation Session

The official opening session of the conference was Ronald Arnatt's lecture-dem-

WESTMINSTER CHOIR TOUR EXTENDS OVER 8 STATES

The 40-voice Westminster Choir was away from the college at Princeton, N.J. most of the month of February on a tour embracing eight states. Beginning Feb. 16 in Detroit the choir was heard successively in Westerville, Ohio, Marion, Ind., St. Louis, North Newton, McPherson, Winfield and Salina, Kansas, Enid and Oklahoma City, Okla., Knoxville, Tenn. and Bluefield, W. Va. Elaine Brown was guest conductor for the tour and conducted in all except the last two cities where Warren Martin was director.

The program included Palestrina, madrigals and motets, Bach, Brahms, and folk songs of many nations.

FOX PLAYS MARCH DATES IN FIVE STATES, CANADA

Virgil Fox will play the following recital dates in March: Court St. Methodist, Flint, Mich. 8; Moody Bible Institute, Chicago 10; First Presbyterian Church, Clinton, Iowa 12; First Covenant Church, Minneapolis, Minn. 14; All Saints Church, Brookline, Mass. 19, and Yorkminster Baptist Church, Toronto, 21.

HERMAN BERLINSKI, Temple Emanuel, New York City, well-known composer of music for the synagogue, will be heard in recital March 12 at St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Evanston, Ill.; the North Shore AGO Chapter is sponsor.

onstration on improvisation. Uses and techniques both were stressed, with facile and intensely musical illustrations. Mr. Arnatt's own skill in this too often neglected church music art made him the ideal choice for this subject, giving listeners a real goal at which to shoot. Those who missed the opening session were treated to another example in Mr. Arnatt's recital encore.

Choir Lecture

Mrs. Ingram's first session followed the break for luncheon. We believe an unbroken lecture of an hour and a half puts anyone at a disadvantage, especially immediately after luncheon. But Mrs. Ingram's personality, wide experience and practical attitude served her well and provided considerable information of value to the listeners. Her remarks at this session were confined to the earlier ages; we should like to have seen her ideas applied in practice.

A coffee break divided the lecture from a question session in which Mrs. Ingram, Mr. Arnatt and Theodore Lams of the university school of music parried questions from the floor. Nothing very new or thought-provoking rose to the surface here except for Mrs. Ingram's ready answers to direct questions about how she actually meets various specific problems in her own church situation. The usual attempts of one or two delegates to monopolize the question times were again in evidence.

Arnatt Recital

Mr. Arnatt made remarkably good use of the old Casavant in Lutkin Hall (originally pictured on the front page of the first issue of THE DIAPASON). The Monday evening program was a demanding one largely of less familiar works—a suitable selection for an audience of professional musicians. In the first half of the program, a lucid unfolding of the Bach Vom Himmel hoch Variations was the highest spot. Some spontaneous explanatory comment of real pertinence to the music to be heard preceded the hearing; a warm and coherent playing of the Franck Pastorale followed it.

The second half of the program was music of our own time. One of the finest performances of the Sowerby Toccata we have heard was followed by two of Mr. Arnatt's own Plainsong Preludes, the Pange Lingua harmonically much in the current British idiom and the Good Friday Antiphon beginning with some pungent modern counterpoint. The Bernard Reichel Pastorale had tongue-in-cheek references to other music; there was irony mixed with its wit. Richard Dirksen's Sonata was of especial interest, particularly its fine rhythmic opening movement. Mr. Arnatt's understanding, technical skill and ability to communicate were of great assistance in the contemporary works.

Second Day

Mrs. Ingram's Tuesday morning session was concerned with the difficult junior-high age. Basing her approach firmly on modern psychological thinking, she made her own success with this age group easy to believe. Again, a demonstration would have livened and clarified her ideas more than the long lecture could possibly have done.

Delegates were invited to remain for an after-lunch student convocation at which students in Northwestern's school of music played.—FC and CB

INSPIRATION

To have an inspired choir, get an inspired choir director. If you are the choir director, get inspired.

How do you do this? Well, we have a couple of suggestions based upon observation of inspired choir directors we have known.

First, get involved in the total works of your church. The words of your anthems will not become meaningful to you or your choir until you live by them.

Second, be constantly on the lookout for unfamiliar anthems that you find musically exciting. We have never known an inspired choir director who did not positively itch to start work on some music he had just discovered.

To help you develop this itch, we have developed two Program Building Kits of general anthems.

Only proved materials have been included in these bound collections of separate publications. The binding is merely for convenience in handling; each publication is available separately if you wish to order single titles in quantity. Check the indicated boxes on the coupon to receive either or both of these Program Building Kits on 30 day approval.

SATB—No. 18

GENERAL ANTHEMS (Easy-to-Medium). These are anthems that will "wear well" during the Sundays when the topic can be approached musically and textually in many ways. They will always strike at least a third or a fifth with the sermon, and sometimes a unison or octave. Many biblical and hymn texts.

Contents: The Earth Is the Lord's (McCormick); Go Ye into All the World (McCormick); God Has Gone Up with a Shout (Klein); God Is a Spirit (McCormick); He Guides Me in His Way (Harter); I Am the Vine (McCormick); If I Go Not Away (McCormick); In This Our Time (Ringwald); Jacob's Vision (Ringwald); O Come, Loud Anthems Let Us Sing (Kirk); O Sing a New Song (Angell); O Very God of Very God (Warner); Praise to the Lord (Hornbrook); Rejoice Ye Pure in Heart (Messiter-Angell); Thanks Be to Thee (Roff); Twenty-Third Psalm (Harter).

SATB—No. 19

GENERAL ANTHEMS (Medium-to-Advanced). Anthems of permanent value that the choir and congregation will continue to find inspiring and worshipful. Texts from the Bible and from hymns, with freshly-created music, make these anthems repeatedly useful throughout the course of the year.

Contents: The Beatitudes (Simeone); Hark! A Thrilling Voice Is Sounding (Marsh); He Took a Child (Emig); I Heard the Voice of Jesus (Lockwood); In Peace and Joy I Now Depart (Edmonds); Let Not Your Hearts Be Troubled (Harter); A Light Shines Forth (Clokey); A Mighty Fortress Is Our God (Luther-Simeone); O Praise the Lord (Jolley-Haggard); Praise to God, Immortal Praise (Warner); Soe Wee May Sing (Lockwood); The Ten Commandments (Ringwald); Thine Is the Power (Roff); Waters of Heaven (Clokey); With Joy We Hail the Sacred Day (Tans'ur-Hutson); Ye That Believe (Clokey).

Alain in Chicago

Chicago's first opportunity to hear Marie-Claire Alain came Jan. 31 at the Sauganash Community Church. A good-sized audience heard the young French artist play a taxing program of music by Bach and French composers, a program offering no novelties but typical of what we expect to hear from French organists, closing with an improvisation on submitted themes. Let it be said at the outset that Mlle. Alain suffered the same experience she must have met in other American appearances: A buried organ in a small building completely without resonance. This is why the music that was more of chamber music character was most successful, notably the fifth trio sonata of Bach. Mlle. Alain is an extremely clean, accurate player; her technique is as close to perfection as that of any of our artists today. If the impression was one of calculated playing one can only hope for a future opportunity to hear her play where she has a bit of help from the organ and the acoustics. Freshness and spontaneity were nearly impossible to project in these circumstances.

Even the Couperin, played in an excellent style, devoid of sentimentality but not of depth nor of wit, made one wish one were in a French church, even one of relatively modest proportions, where the Offertoire sur les Grands Jeux from the Parish Mass might reflect some of the grandeur and sumptuousness of the French court.

Her selection from Franck was the A minor Chorale, eloquently played, almost convincing one that he was hearing a battery of French reeds in the moments of surging excitement following the Adagio. The Two Dances to Agni Vavishta and the familiar Litanies represented the contrasting styles of her late brother Jehan; these were well played, again considering that the Litanies takes a big organ and a live building. The improvisation so often seems like an unnecessary coda; one wishes that a French artist would dare to play a recital in America without this appendage. Mlle. Alain has the ability to improvise, and doubtless has met with more inspiring themes and circumstances, here and abroad. We look forward to a return engagement and another chance to form a more conclusive opinion of the artistic qualities of this charming and brilliant young lady.—ROBERT LODINE

SIX DIVISION AUSTIN TO BALTIMORE CHURCH

OLD FIRST PRESBYTERIAN

Three-Manual in Rear Choir Loft Within Base of 1854 Tower—

John Winship Lewis, Organist-
Director Collaborates on Design

In the fall of 1961 the First Presbyterian Church of Baltimore, Maryland will celebrate the 200th anniversary of its founding. During the American Revolution the Maryland committee on correspondence included practically all the founding fathers of First Presbyterian. Almost all other Presbyterian congregations in the city have stemmed from this Mother Church.

The present fine Gothic church was built in 1854 of New Brunswick free stone after a design by the English architect, Nathan G. Starkweather. The spire of the building, rising 265 feet above the street, can be seen from all parts of the city and is said to be the tallest church spire south of New York.

The new organ will be installed in the rear choir loft within the base of the tower. The great, pedal and positivist divisions will stand freely, bracketed above the choir in a functional arrangement. Part of the original casework from an early Roosevelt organ will be reused to conceal the lower portions of the instrument.

The music of the parish has always been centered in the rear choir gallery. James Winship Lewis, organist and director of music at the church for many years, is also director of several Baltimore choral societies.

The following stoplist was drawn up by Richard Piper, Austin tonal director, in consultation with Mr. Lewis and Dr. William H. Barnes, adviser to the church. Charles L. Neill, Austin representative, handled the negotiations with the church.

"The organ is magnificent ...leaves nothing to be desired"

Says Robert R. Heckman, Minister of Music of First Presbyterian Church of Kirkwood, Missouri.

This 4-manual, 46-rank organ, designed and voiced to make the most of the excellent acoustics of the sanctuary, is just one of thousands of Wicks installations that are bringing incomparable joy to musicians and listeners alike.

Wicks custom builds every organ, utilizing a combination of traditional craftsmanship and modern engineering. Exclusive Direct Electric action assures quiet operation, instant response, and continuous years of maintenance-free performance. Every Wicks organ is thoroughly tone-regulated and tested before shipment... then tone-regulated again following installation, to assure tonal perfection. These are some of the reasons why every Wicks Organ is sold with a ten-year guarantee... twice as long as other leading organ manufacturers.

Write today to find out how you can play a Wicks organ.
No obligation.

Atlanta Honors Hugh Hodgson with Window

HUGH HODGSON

Dr. Hugh Hodgson, organist and master of choristers at St. Luke's Episcopal Church, Atlanta, Ga., for more than 30 years, was honored with the dedication of a beautiful German stained glass window at a ceremony at the morning worship Jan. 22.

Dr. Hodgson retired last year as head of the department of music at the University of Georgia which he founded in 1928 on the Athens campus. He also was chairman of the university's division of fine arts. Presently, he is emeritus regents professor of music for the state university system. He was designated a regents professor, one of only five such men to hold this coveted honor, by the university's board of regents in 1948. Prior to his retirement from the university, he commuted to Atlanta at least once and oftentimes several times a week, to attend to his responsibilities at St. Luke's Church.

Present for the dedication were many distinguished guests, including a large group of prominent Atlanta area musicians and many of his former students.

Appropriately, the window is placed above the organ console in the chancel. It was given by the choir, which also interested various friends and parishioners in expressing appreciation for Dr. Hodgson's enrichment of their worship. The window was created especially for the Church by the Mayer Company, of Munich, Germany, with close consultation by Dr. Hodgson who visited the firm's offices on his annual summer trip to Europe last year. The pattern is an interpretation of the Benedicite, one of the canticles in Morning Prayer.

At the service of dedication, with Dr. Hodgson at the organ, the 60-voice choir sang the deCoster Benedicite and Lovely Appear, Gounod's Redemption.

Dr. Hodgson, a member of the Atlanta

AGO Chapter, is founder and former dean of the Athens-University of Georgia Chapter. He is listed in Who's Who in America, and the Directory of American Scholars.

SING COMMISSIONED WORKS AT 7TH BUFFALO FESTIVAL

The seventh annual Three Choirs hymn festival was held Feb. 12 at St. Paul's Episcopal Cathedral, Buffalo, N.Y. Carrying out one of its major objectives, three newly commissioned works were sung this year: Cantata on Pange Lingua by the young Canadian composer and conductor, Godfrey Ridout; Charlotte Lockwood Garden's anthem, Come Ye Servant People, and Hans Vigeland's youth anthem, My Faith It Is an Oaken Staff. Participating choirs were from Holy Trinity Lutheran, Westminster Presbyterian and the host cathedral.

MISSE DI MINUIT by Marc-Antoine Charpentier was sung Jan. 1 at the Old Stone Church, Cleveland with W. William Wagner conducting from the console.

VALPARAISO UNIVERSITY CHURCH MUSIC SEMINAR

Sixteenth Annual Conference
April 6-9, 1961

The sixteenth annual Valparaiso University Church Music Seminar will be held on the campus of Valparaiso University on the first week-end after Easter. It will open on Thursday evening, April 6, with a concert by the University-Civic Orchestra and will close on Sunday morning with a Festival Service in the University Memorial Chapel. Friday's and Saturday's sessions will feature lectures, round table discussions, choral demonstrations and recitals on the new Schlicker organ.

Participating in this conference will be the famous Westphaelische Kantorei from Herford, Germany, under the direction of Dr. Wilhelm Ehmann. Dr. Ehmann will give a lecture with demonstrations by his choir and instrumentalists of 16th and 17th century choral and instrumental music. The Kantorei will present a concert in Memorial Chapel on Saturday evening, April 8th. Also participating in the programs of the seminar will be the choirs from Concordia Teachers College (River Forest) and Valparaiso University.

McDonald in Chicago

The second number in the subscription series sponsored by the Chicago AGO Chapter was a thoroughly satisfactory recital by Donald McDonald Jan. 23 on the large Aeolian-Skinner at St. Paul's E and R Church. A wholly approving and appreciative audience of considerable size was fortunate to hear what was certainly this season's finest organ solo recital in the Chicago area. Full of verve, warmth and genuine excitement, colorfully and imaginatively registered, always in the most meticulous taste, ever in full command of his resources in a demanding and often breath-taking recital which refused to assume an audience made up of children or morons, it reflected what we think is the proper virtuoso attitude toward the professional recital—one we trust will gradually supersede the three-ring circus. In a program full of peaks (identical with the one which headed February's recital pages) it is not easy to spot an Annapurna but perhaps it was the Durufle Suite, an entirely new experience with this often heard work.

Chicago organists are likely to ask for a chance to hear this superb young player again very soon.—FC

GEORGE MEAD ON WESTERN RESERVE U SUMMER STAFF

George Mead, Trinity Church, New York City and AGO national vice-president, will be a visiting faculty member at Western Reserve University's summer program for church musicians June 19 to Aug. 1 at the Cleveland campus.

Under the direction of Walter H. Blodgett, curator of the musical arts division of the Cleveland Museum of Art, the program will offer courses in composition, sacred choral literature, general musicianship slanted toward the AGO examinations, and private study in organ, voice and all instruments. Practice facilities will be available in the immediate area.

Seminars are planned on hymnology, chant, diction acoustics, organ repertory and related subjects.

ELWOOD E. GASKILL

ELWOOD E. GASKILL is serving his first season as organist and choirmaster of the Harvard Church, Brookline, Mass., a church served in the past by E. Power Biggs and Francis Snow.

Mr. Gaskill was organist and choirmaster for 12 years to 1958 at King's Chapel, Boston and before that served at the Arlington Street Unitarian Church. He was for five years assistant to Archibald T. Davidson and to G. Wallace Woodworth, both of Harvard University.

He holds the MA degree in music from Harvard. He was an organ student of Carl McKinley. Since 1948 he has been registrar and dean of the summer school at the New England Conservatory of Music.

JULIAN PRINGLE EDWARDS, Georgia Institute of Technology, returned Jan. 1 from a three week's tour of Germany sponsored by the special services division of the Armed forces.

Gentlemen:

We want to offer our congratulations to you for the fine organ which you have built for Saint Mary's Cathedral. Musically and visually, it is a great asset to the cathedral which is now nearing completion.

From the beginning we had very definite ideas of the tonal scheme we should have, and your company shared every requirement. For variety, color, cohesive ensemble and brilliance, it is difficult to imagine an organ of its size which would surpass it.

We wish to thank you for your excellent cooperation and the many courtesies which made the whole transaction a pleasant experience.

Sincerely yours,

An Organist Ponders His Income Tax

By FRED STIVENDER

Too often the musician thinks that his profession is one apart to itself and that it has been omitted from income tax benefits that are commonly available to the business man. Surprisingly enough, your attitude toward taxes has a great bearing on how much you might deduct. Rather than maintaining the position that no other profession is similar to that of the church musician, for the maximum tax advantage you should favorably compare it with that of an average businessman. Granted this takes away from the esthetic, but when it saves you several tax dollars, you will no doubt find the attitude quite beneficial for the moment.

Income.

The Government is first and foremost interested in your total income. Any salary will be reported to you on Form W-2. It is up to you to maintain an accurate record of your various income sources, such as: recitals, lessons, weddings, funerals, salary paid for substituting, special programs, lectures, instrument rental, royalties, and any other income. Your appointment book is one means of doing this. If you regularly deposit all income and disburse by check, you are in a better position to defend yourself, should tax litigation ever arise.

Non-Salaried Professional Deductions.

As an independent teacher, performer, artist, professional or lay organist or choirmaster, you are primarily interested in your legitimate deductions. For other than straight salaried persons, it is advisable to use Schedule C, Form 1040, for a recap of income and expenses, which form is virtually self-explanatory.

If your car is essential to your profes-

FRED STIVENDER

FRED STIVENDER, Certified Public Accountant, is presently the chief accountant for the city of Leesburg, Florida. A graduate of Bowling Green Business University, Ky., he has done postgraduate work at George Peabody College, Florida State University, and the University of Florida. An amateur musician, he studied organ under Luis Harold Sanford. Presently on the board of the Central Florida AGO Chapter he was promotion chairman for the 1959 midwinter conclave held at Winter Park. He is on the official board of the Morrison Memorial Methodist Church in Leesburg, chairman of the music committee and in 1958 helped design a new three-manual Aeolian-Skinner for the church.

sion, that portion of its professional use is depreciable, usually at 25% per annum. Likewise, that same portion of the operating expenses is in order—gas, oil, repairs, insurance, taxes, etc. Remember that you must exclude that portion used personally. There are clear rulings that make void any deduction of car use from home to your place of business.

Under line 21, form 1040C, come a multitude of sins. All expenses not otherwise listed come here. To mention just a few: insurance (professional liability, music equipment, etc.), utilities (office), advertising, stationery and office supplies, postage, paper, telephone (professional only), laundry (for robes, special garb), cost of uniforms or special evening dress, accounting and legal fees (re business), janitorial and maid service for office, study, or studio, etc.

Convention and conclave expenses are generally deductible, but usually do not include spouse. Expenses may include transportation, hotel, meals and program charges. Exclude items which are strictly vacation in nature.

Refresher courses and seminars are deductible, if necessary to maintain skills directly and immediately required in your profession. The course must be designed primarily for established professionals to enable them to keep abreast of developments in their fields. Possibly a European trip primarily to see organs and hear music festivals, if done in good faith, might qualify here—it depends on your circumstances. Summer school expenses of teachers incurred for the purpose of obtaining a better position, qualifying for permanent status, increasing salary, or fulfilling personal aspirations are specifically denied. In general, the expenses incurred in getting your education are non-deductible; afterwards keeping it current is deductible. To advance via PhD, etc. is non-deductible. When deductible, you may include tuition, room, rent, travel, and cost of living away from home, in addition to books and other supplies. Payments to voice coaches by professional singers are allowed; hence, the same would hold for organists. It is interesting to note that cost of music lessons in preparation as a music teacher are denied. Be certain you qualify before you claim this deduction, as it is subject to verification. If you qualify, do not fail to claim it.

Accounting and legal fees are usually deductible, if they are incurred in your profession. Tax returns, special work, lawsuits, etc. are generally deductible, unless incurred for unlawful purposes. A professional dancer was allowed deduction for legal fees paid to prosecute a libel suit for protection of his name as a public en-

TACOMA TIPS HAND

The Tacoma, Wash. Chapter, host for the Northwestern regional convention June 13-14, has announced some of its plans.

Delegates from Alaska, Washington, Oregon, Wyoming, Montana and Idaho will hear Lowell Enoch, Pasadena, Cal. open a series of five recitals.

Convention Chairman Charles Adams has arranged further events of variety including a concert by the Capitol Chorale of Olympia, a piano recital, a showing of colored slides of European organs and a Guild choral service with academic procession.

JUDITH DIANA CHADWICK

Rocky Mountain

The Rocky Mountain Chapter met Feb. 6 at the Montview Boulevard Presbyterian Church, Denver. The program consisted of music for organ and instruments. The program included: Sonata da Camera, Corelli; Aria, Peeters; Trumpet Tune, Purcell; Sonata for Organ and Strings, Mozart; Sonatas 5 and 6, Sammartini; Joy of the Redeemed, Dickinson; Toccata, Symphony 5, Widor. A short business meeting followed.

The chapter sponsored the 15th annual adult choir festival Feb. 5 at the Augustana Lutheran Church with 14 choirs participating under the direction of Roger Boyd, ChM, USAF Academy. Jacqueline Wennberg, host organist was recitalist and accompanist. Choral numbers sung were by Brahms, Weelkes, Hassler, Franck, de Lasso, Gretchaninoff and Vaughan Williams.

The Jan. 9 meeting was held at the Wellshire Presbyterian Church. Dean Warner Imig, Colorado University, gave a demonstration of choral technique and diction. A question and answer session was held followed by a short business meeting and refreshments.

JACQUELINE WENNBERG

Helena

The Helena, Mont. Chapter held its annual inter-faith junior choir concert Dec. 4 at the Civic center auditorium with 500 children in the chorus. Milton Brown was accompanist for the festival. It was announced that the chapter was to sponsor Joe Munzinger in a recital at St. Helena Cathedral and Geraldine Carlin in an organ vesper service.

CARRI DRUMMOND KEIL

Fort Collins

The Fort Collins, Colo. Chapter sponsored Gerhard Krapp, University of Wyoming, in a recital Jan. 16 at the First Presbyterian Church. Officers and members of the program committee entertained the Krapp family at dinner in the Marvin Bostrom home before the program. Mr. Krapp's recital appears in that section of this issue.

Mrs. R. A. RYDEN

Albuquerque

The Albuquerque, N.M. Chapter met at the Monte Vista Christian Church Jan. 16 with members of the clergy as guests. The movie Singing Pipes was shown and was followed by a panel discussion on Acoustics in the Church. Participating in the discussion were: Dr. Joseph Blankenship, University of New Mexico; Richard Milner, architect, and Godsell Slocum, organist, as moderator.

Glenn L. Nelson

Columbia Basin

The Columbia Basin Chapter met at the All Saints Episcopal Church, Richland, Wash. Jan. 9. Charlotte Clayton, Marilyn Newland, Louise Foskett, Helen Madson and Marge Paul played the following program of Advent, Christmas and Epiphany music: O Come, O Come Emmanuel, Wehmeyer; O Thou of God the Father and Overture and Chorale Alleluia, Bach; Behold a Rose Is Blooming, Brahms; The Shepherds at the Manger, Lizst; In Bethlehem's Stable, Walcha; From Heaven Above to Earth I Come, Pachelbel; Joy to the World, Andrews; Christ the Lord Is Born Today, Van Hulse; The Star Proclaims the King Is Here, Peeters; March of the Wise Men, Gaul-Black.

DELORES KINNEY

Walla Walla Valley

The Walla Walla Valley, Wash. Chapter met Jan. 9 for an organist-minister dinner. A discussion of problems which organists and ministers face was held in the form of a panel with Dean Melvin West moderating. Panel members were Richard Randolph and Stanley Plummer, organists and the Rev. William Foege and the Rev. Paul Heubach, ministers. Concert, contemporary and sacred music's place in the worship service was discussed as well as the tempo of hymns.

RUTH CHEN

Spokane

Discussion regarding the German recital April 17 was the focal point of the Jan. 11 meeting. The program will be at St. John's Cathedral on the new Aeolian-Skinner organ. Questionnaires mailed to clergy concerning music problems, ways in which the AGO might help etc. were received and the response was good. The result will be tabulated to help solve the problems. Following the meeting members and guests heard a seminar-type recital by George Scott, Pullman, Wash.

FLORENCE THOMPSON

Central Arizona

The Central Arizona Chapter met Jan. 16 at the First Baptist Church, Phoenix. A dinner was catered by members of the First Christian Church, after which Dean Vernon Johnson presided over the business meeting. Matthew Sloan reviewed Guild examination requirements, recounted some of his own experiences in taking them and made suggestions and recommendations for those interested in taking the exams.

MARVIN ANDERSON

La Jolla

The La Jolla, Cal. Chapter met Jan. 9 at the Fourth Church of Christ, Scientist. Mildred Newman, host organist, played: Arioso, Pasquet; two Bach Chorale Preludes; Chorale, Jongen; Lied, Vierne; Ruth and Naomi, Van Hulse; Thanksgiving, Purvis. Marjorie Easler played: Fantasia and Fugue in C minor, Bach; Cortège et Litanie, Dupré. A reception was held at the home of Mrs. Newman at the close of the program.

M. ELIZABETH FLORENT

San Diego

The San Diego, Cal. Chapter met Jan. 9 at the All Saints Episcopal Church for a minister-organist dinner meeting. Lucille Mayer sang three numbers accompanied by Mary Henson. Tapes were heard of Beaumont's Twentieth Century Folk Mass and Vaughan Williams' Mass in G minor. A panel discussion followed with the Rev. Richard Willars as moderator and Louise Blake, Jeanine Hoffmann, Mrs. Robert Cooper and Dr. William Livingston as panel members.

Selections from Oratorios. Five soloists sang numbers from Elijah and St. Paul, Mendelssohn; Joshua, Handel, and The Creation, Haydn. Rosalie Stribling and Dr. A. E. Adams accompanied Thomas Wood, Mrs. Wood, James O'Nan, Mrs. Lamar Lightsey and Evelyn Marten for the program. Mrs. Lightsey entertained the group with a humorous reading at the social hour. Hostesses were Mrs. J. C. Dalton, Mrs. Stribling and Mrs. Frederick J. Terry.

Laura Jo Terry

Central North Carolina

The Central North Carolina Chapter met Jan. 17 at Ballentine's Restaurant for dinner. After the dinner members went to the White Memorial Presbyterian Church for a business meeting and program which featured Dr. and Mrs. Richard Peek, who gave an illustrated lecture on their summer organ tour of Europe. The Peeks were honored at a social hour following the lecture.

Louise Wilson

Aiken

The Aiken, S. C. Chapter met Jan. 10 at the First Christian Church. Jack Foster gave the program The Art of Substituting at the Organ Console. After the program refreshments were served by Mr. and Mrs. Foster.

The chapter met Dec. 13 at the Robert Milham home. A program on the history of the carol was given by Mrs. Milham, dean. After a short business meeting refreshments were served by the host and hostess.

Betty Alyce Fallaw

Asheville

The Asheville, N.C. Chapter met Jan. 23 at the Asheville School for Boys. Plans were discussed for the all Bach recital by Clair F. Hardenstine, organist and Mrs. Richard B. Ford, violinist that was to have been played Feb. 26. Paul H. Bates showed a film featuring Marilyn Mason and Robert Noehren. Dean Hardenstine presided over the business meeting.

Christine L. Ratzell

Daytona Beach

The Daytona Beach, Fla. Chapter members were guests of the Stetson University Student Group at a clergy-organist dinner meeting Jan. 16 in the Union building on the university's campus. Deland. Following the dinner the group went to the First Presbyterian Church where the following program was played on the new Wicks three-manual organ: Judy Williams—Prelude and Fugue in E minor, Bruhns; Travis Plummer—Concerto 1 in G major, Bach; Te Deum, Langlais; Sarah Anderson—Aria, Peeters; Toccata, Sowerby. Jack Coldiron was guest vocalist. Ruth Richardson Carr is sponsor of the student group. Dean Inez Young presided and Bernard Beach was program chairman.

Clarke Weeks

Fort Myers Branch

The Fort Myers Branch chapter officers for the season are: The Rev. Thomas Madden, dean; Lois Strasbaugh, secretary; Marie A. Moran, treasurer.

Marie A. Moran

Mobile

The Mobile, Ala. Chapter held its Christmas party Dec. 9 at the home of James Brigrance. Dean Patricia Fitzsimmons presided over a short business meeting. Plans were made for the Bene Hammel recital held Jan. 27 at the Government Street Presbyterian Church. After the business session Christmas carols were sung. Refreshments were served after the program.

Nellie Hayden

Upper Pinellas

The Upper Pinellas Chapter met Jan. 16 at the Episcopal Church of the Good Shepherd, Dunedin, Fla. with Mrs. Albert Anderson as host organist. Dean Earl Norse conducted the business meeting at which details were discussed concerning the Clearwater Choral Society concert with Paul Butler directing. It was announced that Franklin Mitchell, Reuter Organ Co., would be the speaker at the March meeting and that Catharine Crozier will be sponsored in a recital in May. Howard Wood welcomed the audience to a Discussion and Exemplification of Preludes and Postludes Appropriate for the Smaller Church. Earl Norse played Adoration, Morrow-Corrone and A Shepherd's Idylle, Geibel, as preludes and Fantasie in A minor, Monal, as a suggestion for a postlude. Charlotte Gross discussed the use of contemporary music in the worship service. She played a few of the Preludes and Intermezzi, Schroeder. Dr. Edward Young told some of the comments members of a congregation make about organ music and played Epitaph, Vierne and Hall to the Brightness, Bingham. A social hour followed.

Mrs. Harry Anderson

Miami

The Miami, Fla. Chapter met Feb. 3 at St. Philip's Episcopal Church, Coral Gables for choral evensong service. David B. Brodie played Prelude and Fugue in E flat, Bach for the Prelude. Dr. Ralph A. Harris, FAGO, was organist and choirmaster for the service. The Rev. John G. Shirley, chaplain, gave the address. Refreshments were served in the reception hall following the program.

The chapter met Jan. 17 at the Musician's Club for a musical rummage sale. Members and friends brought music no longer needed in their libraries to be auctioned or sold at small prices with proceeds going to the chapter's general fund. Unsold piano and voice music was donated to a local college and choral works were given to a church with a need for them. The unsold organ music will be catalogued and kept for members' use.

Patricia Hill

Louisville

The Louisville, Ky. Chapter met Jan. 16 at the Adath Jeshurun Temple. After the regular business session host Cantor Pernick gave a talk on Jewish music. He showed the scrolls and explained the order of service in the synagogue.

Ann Strickland

Chattanooga

The Chattanooga, Tenn. Chapter met Jan. 23 for a dinner meeting at the Centenary Methodist Church. Dean Joanne Hart was host organist. Stephen I. Ortilp gave the program Gleanings from a Choral Workshop. It was a condensation of a class taught by Mr. Ortilp at Montreat in the summer. Each member was given a list of suggested anthems for choirs of various sizes.

Jean Fields

Muscle Shoals

The Muscle Shoals Chapter met Jan. 9 at the Muscle Shoals hotel, Sheffield, Ala. for a minister-organist dinner. The Rev. James Patterson talked about music in the church from the minister's viewpoint stating that music should be worshipful, dignified and a means to an end. Oliver Brazelle gave the talk Music Can Be Improved in the Church, stressing the children's and youth programs. Samples of choir books and anthems were shown. He brought out his methods for working with youth choirs, handbell choirs and adult musical groups, and played a recording of a glee club with brass choir. A brief business meeting was held at which Mrs. J. Will Young, dean, thanked Mrs. George Jackson and Mrs. C. D. Fairer, sub-dean, for arranging the meeting.

The chapter met Feb. 7 at the Hotel Muscle Shoals for luncheon. William J. Gravesmill, Southwestern University, Memphis discussed the regional convention to be held in Memphis June 27-30. L. A. Lunsford, Knoxville, Tenn., Schantz Organ Company representative talked about the proper installation of organs in churches. He concluded his talk with colored slides of his trip to Europe. Mrs. J. Will Young, dean, presided over the meeting.

Sarah Ellen Dodson

St. Petersburg

The St. Petersburg, Fla. Chapter sponsored a workshop on repertoire Jan. 9 at the Pasadena Community Church conducted by V. Earl Copes, Nashville, Tenn. The first two sessions included anthems for junior and adult choirs with those attending sightreading as Mr. Copes played. At the session Mr. Copes demonstrated music for organs of every size with pieces for special seasons of the church year. The music sung and heard was on display and mimeographed lists were distributed.

Mary B. Wheatley

Memphis

The Memphis Chapter held a dinner meeting at St. John's Episcopal Church Jan. 9 with Richard White as host organist. Sub-dean David Ramsey conducted the business session. Convention Chairman William Gravesmill gave a report on plans for the regional convention to be held in June. A program of service music was played on the 33-rank Möller organ by: James W. Tugwell, Jr.—Cantabile, Jongen; Harmonies du Soir, Karg-Elert; Grand Choeur, Chauvet; Allegro Promoso, Roseingrave; Ramon Stidham—Prelude, Offertory and Postlude, Drinkard; Billy J. Christian—Adagio and Korael, Modale Suite, Peeters; Reflection on the Passion Chorale, Ratcliffe; Festal Postlude, Faulkes.

Eugenia Eason

Atlanta

The Atlanta, Ga. Chapter met at the Protestant Radio and Television Center Jan. 16 to hear Douglas Johnson play parts 1 and 2 of Bach's Little Organ Book. His program is listed in the recital pages. A short business meeting was held at the intermission. The Schlicker organ used was built especially for the center.

Kathleen Quillen

Jackson

The Jackson, Miss. Chapter met Jan. 22 at the Galloway Memorial Methodist Church. Sub-dean James Furlow played: By the Waters of Babylon and Toccata in F major, Bach; Sketch in F minor, Canon in B major and Fugue in B flat major on B-A-C-H, Schumann. Dean Charles McCool sang a number by Vierne. A brief business meeting was held after the program with Dean McCool presiding. Plans for the remaining meetings of the season were discussed.

MORE FROM MEMPHIS

Emily Cooper and Peter Fyfe have been added to the list of guest recitalists for the June 27 - 30 Southern regional convention. Miss Cooper comes to this convention as no stranger to AGO activities due to her winning first place in the 1956 Guild organ playing competition.

Mr. Fyfe will bring with him W. Ovid Colling, Jr., violist, and Nelson Benz, tenor, to perform compositions by Leo Sowerby.

William Gravesmill

Monmouth

The Monmouth Chapter met Jan. 9 at the First Presbyterian Church, Belmar, N. J. with Mrs. Everett Antonides hosting. Clinton C. Heyer, played a recital before the meeting. His program included: Canzona, Gabrieli; Song of Triumph, Talmadge; In Thee Is Joy, Bach; Pastorale and Allegro, Handel; Thou Art the Rock, Mulet. After the recital a panel discussion on improvisation was conducted by Richard D. Chalfant and Barbara Mount, AAGO. A short business meeting followed the discussion and refreshments were served.

The chapter met Dec. 4 at Convention Hall, Asbury Park for a program of Christmas music. Members' choirs sang and several organists played numbers and accompanied the choirs. The program included choral numbers by Bach, Christiansen, Ossewaarde, Pashley, Sowerby, Marryott and Handel. Organ pieces played were by Benoit, Vaughan Williams, Brahms, Daquin, Busser and Candlyn.

Marguerite Jackson

Queens

The Queens Chapter met Jan. 16 at St. Matthew's Lutheran Church, Ozone Park, N.Y. Seth Bingham, MusD, FAGO spoke on Langlais—the Person and His Works. He analyzed the following works of the composer: Neuf Pieces, Suite Brève, Suite Française, Suite Médiévale and Homage a Frescobaldi. He also played recordings of two Langlais masses. Coffee and cake were served.

Edna Wilson Walzer

Central New Jersey

The Central New Jersey Chapter met Feb. 6 at the First Baptist Church, Trenton. Dean William E. Reed presided over the business meeting. The program featured organ and vocal music suitable for Maundy Thursday, Good Friday Communion, Lenten and Easter services. Participating in the program were Mr. and Mrs. William B. Parent, Gertrude Bergen, Marion Flintzer, Louise Clary and Dolores Kirkham. After members scanned music on display, refreshments were served.

The chapter met Jan. 9 at the Broad Street Park Methodist Church with Isabelle Shannon as host organist. Following the business meeting a report of the national convention was given by Kenneth Zink who illustrated his talk with colored slides. His talk was concluded by the playing of a whimsical composite of Bach themes. An informal program was played by Dean Reed and Wilfred Andrews.

Dolores Kirkham

Nassau

The Nassau Chapter met Jan. 10 at the First Presbyterian Church, Mineola, N.Y. Joseph A. Surace played a lecture demonstration recital on the new three-manual, 43-rank Casavant organ. Annette Tuckhorn, soprano, and Frank Carne, bass-baritone assisted.

Rochester
The Jan. 22 meeting of the Rochester, N.Y. Chapter was held in the chapel of the Third Presbyterian Church. Dean David Cordy called a short business session with emphasis on the next two meetings: a spaghetti supper Feb. 21 at the Charles Wilson residence and a Wilma Jensen recital in April. The remainder of the meeting was given over to music played by members on the Skinner organ in the chapel: Harold R. Steen—Fugue in E flat, Bach; Richard Lansing—Carol, Whitlock; Adagio, Sonata 3, Guilman; J. Elmore Jones—Truro, Bingham; Mit Fried und Freud, Willan; Barbara Klump—Sonata 1, Hindemith; Blair Cosman—Prelude and Fugue in D, Handel; March Grave and Divine Inspiration, Gruenewald; Marion Craighead—Carillon-Sortie, Mulet.

RUTH FAAS

Allegheny
The Allegheny Chapter met Jan. 24 in the social hall of the First Methodist Church, Olean, N.Y. Dean Chester E. Klee conducted the business meeting. Host organist J. Edgar Felton played a recital of Bach works. Refreshments were served after the program.

PHILIP F. SMITH

Buffalo
The Buffalo Chapter sponsored Virgil Fox in recital Jan. 11 at the Central Park Methodist Church. Wallace VanLier, host organist, was chairman of the event. An opportunity was given to all to greet Mr. Fox in the church parlors after the program. His recital appears in that section of this issue.

EDNA M. SHAW

Auburn
The Auburn, N.Y. Chapter met Jan. 9 at the Seventh Day Adventist Chapel Jan. 8. After a brief business meeting Jack Morse conducted the program Tracker Action Organs of Central New York. The talk was illustrated by colored slides and assisted by tape recordings played by Dean John McIntosh. Organs mentioned specifically are located in Clyde Episcopal, Clyde Presbyterian, Romulus Episcopal and Skaneateles Baptist churches. Mr. Morse gave construction details and historical sketches of many area trackers. Members were invited to play the 20-rank tracker in the chapel at the close of the program.

ARLENE MORSE

St. Lawrence River
The St. Lawrence River Chapter met Jan. 16 at the Trinity Church, Watertown, N.Y. A choral demonstration of Christmas music used at the church was heard under the direction of Naughton Taylor. Mr. Taylor also gave a talk on his experiences while attending the Royal School of Church Music in England.

JOAN LAMICA

Suffolk
The Suffolk Chapter met Jan. 8 at the home of Eva Stewart, Huntington, N.Y. Stewart and Donald Studholme played a two piano recital. A social hour and covered dish supper followed.
The chapter held its Christmas party Dec. 16 at the Ernest A. Andrews home, Setauket. Dean Hazel Blakelock urged members to apply for the service playing certificate and to send in their applications and fees before Jan. 1. Games were played followed by singing of carols by the group and soloists with organ and piano accompaniment. Refreshments closed the party.

ERNEST A. ANDREWS

Central New York
The Central New York Chapter met Feb. 7 at St. Stephen's Episcopal Church, New Hartford. After dinner Dean Cornelia M. Griffin conducted the business meeting and announced William Kempf, Rome, as the winner of the Briesen scholarship. Nellie D. Snell reported that James Hanosh will direct the junior choir festival. Dean Griffin announced the nominating committee: Ray Conrad, chairman, Mrs. Spencer H. Goyette, Mrs. Edwin Wires, Horace Douglas and Donald Robinson. George Huddleston, regional chairman, gave a talk on various subjects of concern to organists.

JEANNETTE E. SNYDER

Eastern New York
The Eastern New York Chapter met at St. George's Episcopal Church, Schenectady, Jan. 22 where host organist Frederick Monks played the following program: From Heaven Above to Earth I Come, Lord, Hear the Voice of My Complaint, In Thee Is Gladness, Prelude and Fugue in B minor, Bach; Elevation and Offertoire sur les Grands Jeux, Couperin; Romance sans Paroles, Bonnet; Solemn Melody, Davies, Piece Heroique, Franck. The boy choristers assisted. Following the recital Dean Helen Henshaw presided at the business meeting. Refreshments were served by Betty Valenta and her committee.

HEIGA SAETVET

Rockland County
The Rockland County Chapter met Jan. 9 at the Pearl River, N.Y. Methodist Church. The program was conducted by Cantor George Weinfash who talked about Hebrew sacred and folk music, played recordings and sang several pieces accompanied by Mrs. William Garellek. He directed his junior choir in several Hebrew works.
The chapter met Dec. 10 at the Cathedral of St. John the Divine, New York City for a rehearsal of the boy choir and an evensong service under the direction of Alec Wyton. Prior to the rehearsal members went on a conducted tour of the cathedral.

HARLOW L. HAWTHORNE

Hudson-Catskill
The Hudson-Catskill Chapter sponsored Dean Loton E. Springstead in a recital Feb. 6 at the Presbyterian Church, Hudson. Mr. Springstead's program included works by Saint-Saëns, Felton, Avison, Nearing, Handel, Bach and Peeters. Two trumpeters assisted in Ceremonial Music, Purcell. The chapter sponsors this recital annually to raise funds to send its dean to a summer music seminar each year. Following the program the regular monthly meeting was held followed by a social hour.

CLAYTON J. WALTERMIRE

Westchester
The Westchester, N.Y., Chapter met Jan. 17 at the Scarsdale Community Baptist Church with Dean Ruth Branch presiding over the brief business meeting. The remainder of the evening was spent in a profitable reading session of recent anthems from many different publishers ably conducted by D. DeWitt Wasson. To mark the tenth anniversary of the chapter, the social committee served a beautifully decorated birthday cake at the refreshment hour. Host Organist Frank Dunsmore invited all members to inspect the Möller organ recently rebuilt and augmented by Richard F. Minnich, White Plains.

FRANK H. DUNSMORE

Lockport
The Lockport, N. Y. Branch held its winter choir festival rehearsal at the Grace Episcopal Church Jan. 12 with Chairman Cecil A. Walker conducting. FOR YOU:

The introduction of the Classic TC-4 Allen Electronic Organ in Detroit last June has occasioned considerable interest in some organ circles. In the main, attention seems to focus on two questions: "Why was the instrument created?" and "How does it work?"

The answers to both questions—as well as an interesting clarification of the basic elements of classic organ tone—are provided in some detail in an attractive, illustrated brochure now available from the Allen Organ Company. Write for your free copy today.

CHICAGO, MARCH 1, 1961

Basic Research

This is the time of year when we receive a very special kind of mail. Students have just awakened to the horrible realization that they have only weeks, or at most months, to complete their term papers, theses, projects or dissertations. And so to the office of THE DIAPASON come such letters as these:

It has just occurred to me that there may be an important correlation between the size of an organist's feet and hands and his potential as a virtuoso. Please send by return mail the shoe and glove sizes of all organists who have advertised in your publication since its inception. It will be helpful if this information can be arranged under the actual sizes: all organists who wore 9½ B shoes being listed together alphabetically.

or

It is essential that I have information from you by March 1 concerning the number of professional choir directors who wear trifocal spectacles as opposed to those who wear bifocals. The whole body of my ophthalmological research must await this important detail.

Please use the enclosed airmail, special delivery envelope to send us a complete list of past-deans of AGO chapters whose surnames began with the letter "M".

Of course these letters are slightly exaggerated (how slightly you will never know!) and we therefore plead editorial license. And some of the requests are for genuinely interesting information such as one for details about blind organists. Unfortunately even on such queries our files cannot possibly supply even the most fragmentary facts.

Indeed our some thousands of file cards hardly supply the most basic information required for our own use. We wish we had the time and manpower to make them even as nearly complete as an average daily newspaper "morgue." But even then their correlation into the kind of categories which would supply the kind of information students demand would be a lifetime task.

We are frankly flattered that so many readers consider us the "source of all wisdom" but we feel guilty and frustrated that we can so rarely answer even their easy questions. Even the celebrated McWhirter twins (whose famed Guinness Book of Records Art Buchwald calls "one of the fastest-selling books in England") might be stumped by some of the more difficult ones.

How often students could find their answers more rapidly and in more detail in the reference departments of their university libraries!

Decentralization

Word of the "dismemberment" of the London Society of Organists, one of the wonderfully hospitable host organizations at the International Congress of Organists held in London in 1957, points up the decentralization movement now taking place in some of our large AGO chapters. This is not the first time we have pointed out the parallels between our organization and the British ones which preceded it.

Replacing the central "society" with an association comprised of five "societies" is so similar to what is happening in Greater New York where four of five boroughs now have their own chapters and where the various suburban divisions of the metropolitan area are represented by chapters in three states.

In Chicago since the branching off of the North Shore chapter, the beginnings of area meetings presage the probability of an eventual group of five or more branches. This same kind of decentralization is taking place in other centers of population where distances are great and transportation increasingly difficult.

We feel that such a trend has possibilities for returning to the large and often static chapters the kind of intimacy and warmth our smaller chapters report. How can a chapter of 500 members hope to have much real acquaintance among its number?

But there is a feature of the London situation we might consider copying both locally and regionally: one society has become five but the five have an association of their own. Would our state organizations and our regions be able to develop a kind of similar autonomy which would express itself every odd-numbered year in increasingly effective regional conventions?

Sincere!

The word sincere since the days of The Hucksters has had a most insincere connotation, yet we have no adequate substitute. There is something a little too bedrock about the words honest and truthful; frank and outspoken imply some other hues; straightforward and "as good as one's word" are long and awkward. The etymological bases of sincere are favorable to its use and by now we should be able to forget the Madison Avenue uses in such phrases as a "sincere" tie or "sincere" office furniture.

With the temporary decay of the "with-out-decay" word sincere has come a regrettable habit of questioning the sincerity of those who do not agree with us. For instance, we consider it unfortunate that one organ builder will impugn the motives of another just because his ideas of design are different. A recent exchange in our "letters to the editor" column is a case in point: one builder who questions the necessity for subs and supers on his kind of design is openly accused of "short-changing" by another builder. This kind of thing sometimes infects advertising but even more often it becomes part of the regular sales lingo of salesmen for both pipe and electronic instruments in their intramural as well as their inter-league forays.

Why can't we say "I don't like such-and-such because—" instead of implying or declaring that our opponent is a "stupid jerk who doesn't know beans about (take your choice!) scaling, voicing, action, design." This kind of thing is bad enough in the most dog-eat-dog commercial situations; among artist-craftsmen in a professional field it is nauseating.

And some of our players are no more ethical. "Oh, him!" they say: "What can you expect of a guy like him?" Well, some of us expect a lot of a guy like him and we often get it. Let's develop some esprit de corps. We have a big enough sales job to win over the outsiders without all this in-fighting.

This does not mean that we should condone dishonest advertising such as the use of recordings of the organ at Notre Dame Cathedral as background music for a sales pitch for one of those so-called "chord-organs"—a regular practice at Christmas-time 1960. Or a picture of Rheims Cathedral to advertise the "cathedral tone" of these abominations. This sort of behavior is outside the realm of sincerity or ethics. This is something our Better Business Bureaus should be protecting us from. Why don't they?

Just Not Our Type

Our typewriter—a very good one—has days when it simply cannot spell. Sometimes it is in a very economical mood and leaves out letters which, in its opinion, are unnecessary, and so our news copy before editing those days takes on the look of one of the modern shorthand systems. To balance this, there are other days when it becomes generous and supplies occasional words with what to us are totally dispensable extra letters.

Mostly, however, it is just incorrigible, recalcitrant and perverse. It simply takes the bit in its teeth and, like Stephen Leacock's horseman, rides off in all directions at once.

Our only consolation is that many typewriters owned by people who send in news or who merely write us letters appear to be close relatives of our typewriter. Despite the now almost universal knowledge of the "touch system" (our knowledge, such as it is, was not acquired in a typewriting class) a really "clean" sheet of typing is not a commonplace even in the business world.

Our correspondents' typewriters are particularly undisciplined on such words as tocatta, hrapiscord, Meedevil and Baroque. There is no real unanimity on the spelling of the name of a popular British composer who is variously known as Vaughn Williams, Von Williams and Van Williams; Williams is, however, spelled consistently whether for the composer of Rhasmedre or for David McKay, Mackay or MacKaye. The typewriters of chapter treasurers find the widest possible range of spelling for names of members on subscription lists sent to the office of THE DIAPASON (DIPASON, DIPASON).

We are told that some psychiatrists of the Freudian persuasion can read all sorts of things into one's typing mistakes. We have no plans to consult one about ours.

Our mother was of the opinion that most misspelling was the result of inaccurate pronunciation. We once agreed with her on this but we don't any more. We are now convinced that the trouble is just with these modern typewriters.

MARILYN MASON TO TEACH AT INSTITUTE AT ALFRED

Marilyn Mason will teach organ at the 13th church music institute sponsored July 9-14 by the Canacadea AGO Chapter at Alfred, N.Y., University. Louis H. Diercks, Ohio State University, will head the voice department and the choir work while Edward Johe, Columbus, Ohio, will train the junior choir, using fourth, fifth and sixth graders in a demonstration group, and will conduct a handbell workshop. Melvin Le Mon, Alfred University, will conduct some classes. As usual Lois Boren Scholes will be in charge.

Looking Back Into the Past

Fifty years ago the March, 1911 issue contained these matters of interest—

A draft of the proposed form of musical service to be used at the coronation of King George V and Queen Mary in June was prepared by Sir Frederick Bridge, organist of Westminster Abbey. The Abbey choir was to be assisted by 400 voices from the choirs of St. Paul's, the chapels royal of St. James and Savoy, and several cathedrals outside of London. There was to be an orchestra of 80.

An overturned candle being used by a repairman ruined the organ at the University of Southern California.

William C. Carl's engagements in the new year included a musicale in the grand banquet room of Mrs. William K. Vanderbilt's Fifth Avenue mansion, on the Odell organ at the MacLean mansion in Washington, D.C., and at the Bagley musicale on the new Estey organ at the Waldorf-Astoria hotel.

Hook and Hastings built a four-manual organ for the Eighth Church of Christ, Scientist, Chicago.

A meeting of the new Minnesota AGO Chapter Feb. 15 gave opportunity for inspecting the newly-constructed St. Mark's Church, Minneapolis.

The New England AGO Chapter held its 24th public service Feb. 9 at Trinity Church, Boston.

A $20,000 Kimball was planned for the Masonic Temple, Guthrie, Okla.

Twenty-five years ago these events were reported in the March, 1936 issue—

Eric DeLamar resigned from Chicago's Fourth Presbyterian Church and was succeeded by Barrett Spach who had been assistant organist since 1929.

Pittsburgh announced plans for the AGO national convention in June; Herbert C. Peabody was general chairman.

George H. Fairclough, FAGO, was honored on his completion of 35 years at the Church of St. John the Evangelist, St. Paul, Minn.

Northwestern University held its fourth annual church music conference Feb. 11.

Ralph Downes, who served at Princeton University from 1928 until the end of 1935 was appointed organist at Brompton Oratory, London.

St. Patrick's Cathedral was host to the New York City Chapter Feb. 10 when Pietro Yon played and directed the chorus in a service of solemn benediction.

Ten years ago these occurrences were published in the March 1951 issue—

A government order prohibiting the use of new tin in organ pipes threatened to cause a critical situation in the organ industry.

Charles Henderson (now at St. George's, New York City) was selected by the Wilkes-Barre, Pa. Junior Chamber of Commerce as its "young man of the year" for 1950.

Frank W. Asper completed his "coldest tour" which ranged from 35° below zero at International Falls, Minn. to an ice storm at Nashville, Tenn. which left the city without electric power; Dr. Asper returned two days later for this engagement.

An autobiographical sketch by Ernest M. Skinner written on his 85th birthday was included.

Marshall Bidwell was chosen for a special award at the man-of-the-year dinner of the Pittsburgh Junior Chamber of Commerce.

NOONDAY PROGRAMS HEARD
AT HARVARD UNIVERSITY

Three noonday musical events were scheduled in January under the sponsorship of the Harvard University Memorial Church. Lois Pardee played the Reubke Sonata Jan. 6 and John Ferris played Telemann and Bach Jan. 13 in recitals at Appleton chapel. The Harvard University choir sang an English program Jan. 20 at the Busch-Reisinger museum.

HONEGGER's King David was sung Jan. 30 at the Church of the Ascension, New York City with Vernon de Tar conducting from the console.

Letters to the Editor

The New Miss Susie?

Glen Ridge, N. J., Feb. 9, 1961—
Dear Sir:

Re: your editorial on the demise of Miss Susie. You ask what has become of her? Nothing. She's still around. Only now she has dyed her hair and is wearing high heels and short skirts. She is no longer the village piano teacher but the school music director. She is easily recognized by her indecisive beat and her adherence to SA and SAB arrangements of Broadway tunes. She has done more to ruin good choral music than all of the composers of the Dudley Buck era combined.

The modern Miss Susie has a Phi Beta Kappa key. However, she most likely majored in Romance languages—a worthy enough major indeed, but not much help in training a good choral group. Her influence is widespread—as any church musician who has several youth choirs can tell you. She knows all about the Baroque period—as it relates to art, that is.

Miss Susie is young and attractive these days and therefore much more dangerous.

MURIEL PETERSON ROBINSON

In Praise of Skinner

Cleveland, Ohio, Jan. 31, 1961—
Dear Sir:

Many words have been written about Ernest M. Skinner. May I write just a few more? Trinity Cathedral has a four-manual E. M. Skinner of 1907. I have played many organs in this country to find this one of the most satisfying of any builder. The design of the choir organ is splendid, allowing proper use of this division for accompanying, and at the same time providing a division of rare beauty in solo performance. The nave organ—a reed division at the rear of the cathedral—is truly majestic. This instrument thrilled thousands of lovers of music in the 52 years it was played by Dr. Edwin Arthur Kraft. It was with true foresight that Dr. Kraft insisted that this organ be rebuilt in 1955 nearly as Mr. Skinner had installed it. Would that all those who play these more noble installations be so inspired to keep all that is possible of what this great man left us, that when Ozmandias has come and gone, true tonal beauty will remain.

HARRY W. GAY

How Universal a Design?

Chicago Heights, Ill., Jan. 22, 1961—
Dear Sir:

Lately I have been troubled by what looks to be another trend towards conformity in organ design, and, if past performance is any measure, there is no better way to find out if my suspicions are correct than to set them out in a letter to THE DIAPASON.

If, in our pendulum of organ tonal design, we should place classicism to the far left and romanticism to the far right, it would appear that we are the possessors of a very erratic clock. This pendulum does not move within reasonable limits on either side of the center position, but rather it manages to go as far as it can in one way or another and promptly gets stuck there until some thing or another comes along to give it a push in the opposite direction.

What is being done today is popularly referred to as classicism. It is actually not that at all, but, for lack of a better word, the term will survive. Organ design is now being returned to the basic principles established four centuries ago. I cannot, however, agree with those who would write it off the period of development occasioned by the appearance on the organ scene of men such as Hope-Jones and Skinner. This period of romanticism (again for lack of a better term) contributed a great deal to the organ, even though it can be said that a minor tragedy did occur when the basic principles were allowed to be discarded.

Instead of acting, I think the American organ world is reacting. The re-application of basic principles to American organs is an encouraging thing, but we should not, we must not, lose our initiative or our creativity in this. It is easy to copy; and the temptation to copy is great when the copy will sell.

I believe that copying process has begun because already the great division of our instruments is becoming stereotyped and the positive is not far behind it. The danger of such uniformity is that, in our country particularly, uniformity is not a necessary attribute to the church organ. The multiplicity of our various denominations as well as the musical tastes of individual congregations of non-liturgical bodies are very good reasons why this is and must be so.

Consider, what it is that we are copying. Basically, this is what can be termed a "severe" instrument, ideally suited to the form of service found in Scandinavia and the German and Dutch speaking countries. This form of design has not found favor in Great Britain, Eastern Europe, or the Latin countries of France, Italy and Spain.

Organ design through the centuries has accompanied the religious changes taking place and has adapted itself to requirements. France and England both developed their own classic designs (within the framework of the basic principles) that were things apart from what developed in Holland and Germany. This should be very significant to us in the United States. Anglo-catholics, Roman Catholics, Lutherans—they all required different things from their ecclesiastical instruments!

These basic designs have had 400 years to come about and you will not find contemporary European builders very open-minded regarding changes. They need not be otherwise, for there is great unanimity among their customers as to how a church organ should sound, what it should be able to do and what part in the service it should play.

In the United States there is no such unanimity, and until the ecumenical movement stops being a "movement" and finally accomplishes its end result, there will be no such general agreement. Thus, the lip service we pay to the idea of the "custom-built" organ must become more and more a thing of reality. It is my opinion that the so-called classic organ is suitable for only a small minority of American churches. I further believe that no one "system" of design can be developed which could serve even a simple majority of our churches.

Thus the way could be open to our turning of attention to the needs of the churches as denominations and as congregations. Some real creativity in design, not just in stoplist but also in other pertinent areas, is the challenge I would like to see taken up. Some of the new console ideas are intriguing and much could still be done towards further reducing their size and their cost. Wood pipes do not have to be made of sugar pine, nor do metal pipes have to be made of spotted metal or tin. Neither does case-work have to be made of wood. (And speaking of case-work, have you noticed how all of it lately seems to be coming from one man's drawing-board?)

J. PAUL AUBREY

QUALITY IS A "SOMETIMES" THING

Have you ever heard someone claim his work was NOT quality work? Probably not.

Even a 25c dry-cleaning job can be quality—25c quality, that is.

There are as many levels of quality in pipe organ installations as there are pipe organ builders.

The Schantz Organ Company (along with other members of The Associated Pipe Organ Builders of America) is pledged to—and proud of—HIGH quality in its pipe organ installations.

Next month in this space we will begin a new series of advertisements. The theme will be: the attention that we give to detail which—as we have often pointed out—we consider so necessary to high quality organ building in the long-standing and well-known Schantz tradition.

The advertisements will feature some of the things we do so that the pipe organ you purchase will serve you long and faithfully . . . the extra steps we take so that you and your church will not have to conduct a school for organ mechanics . . . the types of workmanship and methods you can get only from an established pipe organ builder of good reputation.

A few of the processes we'll discuss in the advertisements are unique with Schantz. Others are our improvements of techniques common to the organ-building business.

All will be concerned with things the pipe-organ purchaser should know—if he's interested in quality. The series is designed to help you make a wise decision: not necessarily to deal with Schantz, but certainly to deal with a pipe organ builder who values the firm's good name—and backs it up with the best in workmanship . . . the highest in quality.

London
 The London Centre met Jan. 22 at the Bishop Cronyn Memorial Church. A goodly number was present to enjoy a musical trip in sound and pictures to churches and organs of Western Europe, as conducted by Lansing MacDowell, host organist. A business meeting followed at which Chairman T. C. Chattoe presided. Under discussion was the choral festival for April and the recital by Lady Susi Jeans.

List Events Planned for Convention at St. Catharines

First program news of the RCCO convention to be held in St. Catharines has begun to arrive. The acceptance of the invitation to Jean Langlais is reported on page 1.

Frederick Silvester, FCCO, will play the examination pieces at this year's meeting and Ray Berry of The American Organist will conduct a forum. George Little will speak on Church Leadership in Music.

The Queensway Hotel in St. Catharines will be convention headquarters and the dates are announced as Aug. 29, 30 and 31. As usual, the council will meet the day preceding the actual convention.

Halifax

The Halifax Centre Dec. 13 again sponsored the annual carol service, this year one of the most successful, numerically and financially, for some years. As a result the centre has now reached its goal of a $1,000 borrowing fund for young organists who wish to study abroad. Ten choirs took part in the service held in St. Matthew's United Church. Maitland Farmer, Ross N. MacLean and Joanne Dowell played the voluntaries.

Natalie Littler, St. Paul's Anglican Church gave a short recital there Jan. 23 on the new four-manual Casavant. Her program appears on the recital page. Afterward, members attended a meeting in the parish hall where refreshments were served.
 NANCY F. MACLENNAN

Moncton

The Moncton Centre sponsored its 11th annual Christmas festival Dec. 13 in the Central United Church. Twelve choirs representing churches of the area occupied the choir loft and the gallery and an appreciative congregation filled the auditorium proper. E. W. Freeborn was the festival organist and with Mrs. D. A. Steeves, Marlon Murray and R. Douglas Murray constituted the music selection committee. The choirs, each under its own director, sang a variety of carols of many countries. There were numbers by the combined choirs, a ladies' chorus and a men's chorus. Several well-known Christmas hymns were sung by the combined choirs and the congregation. Refreshments were served by the Sunny Brae Baptist choir at the conclusion of the festival.
 V. C. Blackett

Hamilton

The Hamilton Centre met Jan. 21 to view four movies procured from the National Film Board. Jarvis Stoddard chose to show: The Romance of Transportation, Begone Dull Care, which is an attempt to depict contemporary music by design and colour, Corre-lieu, the story of Ozias Leduc who was a great influence on the art of painting in French Canada, and the new film on the life of Healey Willan, Man of Music. Chairman Gordon Morralliee thanked Mr. Stoddard for this varied program.
 HOWARD W. JEROME

Calgary

The Calgary Centre held a Christmas party Dec. 10 at the home of Dr. and Mrs. E. P. Scarlett. As in the past, the party took the form of a record-listening evening followed by an enjoyable buffet supper.

Toronto

Two events claimed the attention of Toronto Centre members in January. The Jan. 30 meeting took place at the suburban Kingsway-Lambton United Church where John Clarke dealt extensively with music for small organs. Taking a one-manual, a two-manual and a small three-manual of his acquaintance as models, he played Willan's Prelude on Martyrdom and Miniature Suite using only the stops available on these three instruments. The demonstration was followed by a performance of Bach's Cantata 152, Walk in the Way of Faith, featuring Elaine Meek and John Bates with Constance Bates at the piano and Mr. Clarke at the organ. Mr. Clarke concluded the musical part of the evening, demonstrating the resources of the large three-manual Casavant in: Pontifical March, Symphony 1, Widor; Carillon for organ, with carillon bells, F. D. Clark, and Karg-Elert's Improvisation on A Mighty Fortress. A social hour closed the meeting.

The annual New Year's party was held Jan. 9 at the Heliconian Club; as usual it was well attended. The program, convened by David Legge, opened with a sing-song led by William Sara and accompanied by Alexander Shaw who manned the piano throughout the evening. Diana McCreath was guest artist in several piano solos. The recent opening of Toronto's first independent television channel was the event about which the entertainment was built; this offered scope for numerous clever commercials (tonic sol fa and organ consoles for lady organists) some sung by a male quartet and the remainder read by various members. There were humorous contests with appropriate prizes. Chairman Ronald Woollard outlined coming attractions and refreshments closed the evening.

The Edmonton Centre met Nov. 27 at St. Barnabas German Catholic Church to hear the 90-year-old, two-manual, 12-rank Mason & Hamlin tracker recently installed by Ken McLaren. Father Wolfgang Bottenberg gave an illustrated lecture on tone production in organs, explaining the difference between electro-pneumatic and tracker actions. To demonstrate he played: Toccata in E minor, Fugue in D minor and Toccata in C minor, Fachelbel; Fugue in G minor, Canzona in D minor and Prelude and Fugue in D minor, Bach; Intrada, Ahrens; From Heaven High, Pepping, and his own Praeambulum in G. At the same meeting a tape recording of The Organ of the Redwood Pipes was heard—the story of the first organ built in Victoria, B.C. in 1867 at St. Mark's Church. Luke Van Kirk convened this part of the program. Marvelyn Schwerman reported that eight members of the centre travelled 200 miles to Calgary to hear the Germani recital. The Calgary Centre entertained at a reception following the program.

The centre met Jan. 10 at the Strathcona Baptist Church. G. Douglas Millson based his talk on suggestions regarding junior choir leadership. He said that he got more satisfaction from leading a group of youngsters due to their keenness. He also stated that one of the most important things is "what other activities do you have besides singing?" Reginald Geen, Oshawa, spoke on his experiences with senior choirs and gave many suggestions. He said the basis of all good singing is good breath control and suggested that all choir leaders should study the art of singing. A display of music was available for perusal. Arrangements for the meeting were made by Ken McLaren, Charles Dool and Marvelyn Schwerman. Refreshments were served.

MARVELYN SCHWERMAN

St. Catharines

The St. Catharines Centre met Jan. 15 in Christ Lutheran Church. Deputy Chief Albert E. Shennan gave an interesting talk on the varied tasks of the police department. At the business session further plans were discussed for the RCCO convention to be held in St. Catharines next August.

GORDON KAY

Montreal

At the Jan. 28 meeting of the Montreal Centre in St. Matthew's Presbyterian Church, David T. Brown, host organist, gave a short address on the history of the Scottish Psalter. Colored slides were shown depicting pages of words and music from the 1564 and the 1635 editions. Members and friends participated in singing several of the old tunes with Mr. Brown as precentor. At the close of the talk, David Huddelson played numbers based on psalm tunes: Old 100th, Walther; Stracathro, Cameron; Old 124th and Caithness, Willan. Chairman Montague Matthews presided at a short business session and outlined plans for future meetings.

DAVID T. BROWN

Vancouver

The Vancouver Centre met Jan. 21 at the Church of St. John the Evangelist, North Vancouver. David Rogers played the opening recital on the organ built by G. Herald Keefer. Mr. Keefer explained some of the features of the instrument and played short passages to illustrate, for example the free-standing section of the great. Music was chosen to demonstrate the reeds, and flutes and possibility of clarity in such contrapuntal work as Toccata in F and Movement 1, Sonata 1, Bach. Host organist was H. Kingsley Watson. In spite of thick fog, a number of people gathered for the recital. Mr. Rogers' complete program is in the recital section.

VERSATILITY - POWER - QUALITY OF TONE . . . all three of these requirements have been satisfied by the three-manual Rodgers Organ recently installed in this new eight million dollar education-recreation center. Thrilling and dramatic effects, characteristic of the famous theatre organs of tradition, excite sporting event audiences of more than 14,000. Additionally, the Rodgers Coliseum organ is equipped with the necessary tonal resources for the performance of liturgical and concert organ music. A two and one-half ton speaker assembly composed of 94 speakers delivers Rodgers' authentic organ tone to all parts of the huge arena.

. . . Further testimony to the ability of the Rodgers Organ Company to satisfy the most demanding installation requirements.

New Organ Music

A very few organ pieces have reached us in this new year, several of the leading publishers of music for our instrument being so far unrepresented. Perhaps some sales psychology is being used: with an early Easter bringing Advent and Lent so close together, organists may be presumed to be too busy or too exhausted to pay much attention just now to new recital and service material for the organ. The music discussed in February's column had all reached us before 1961.

Abingdon Press, from whom we had previously received only books and choral material, has just issued three hymn preludes by T. Frederick H. Candlyn—one on Rockingham, one on St. Bernard and the third on Mit Freuden Zart. All three are on the quiet side and of convenient length for service use, and all make good use of their musical possibilities. Suggested organ and detailed Hammond registration is provided.

C. S. Lang has selected a favorite organ key for his conventional but skillful Prelude and Fugue in G minor (Novello). The prelude is in a big style and the short fugue which states its subject in the pedals ends fortissimo.

Certainly it was inevitable that the organ eventually receive some of the works of Villa-Lobos, one of the major musical voices of our time. Camil Van Hulse has made a playable arrangement of Bachianas Brasileiras 5 for the organ (Associated Music Publishers) and we would not be surprised to find it popping up frequently on the recital pages of THE DIAPASON.—FC

Religious Songs

Ever since John Charles Thomas in his heyday made Albert Malotte's rather melodramatic setting of The Lord's Prayer probably the most widely sung religious solo of the 20th century, other and perhaps sometimes more appropriate settings have been appearing from composers and publishers of every stripe. The best-seller has been railed against by theologian and musician, has been banned from some church services, has been deplored as "theatrical," "unprayerful" and "secular," yet so far no other setting has even begun to displace it.

Joining the efforts to compete is a new setting by the eminent Flemish organist Flor Peeters (C. F. Peters). Many of this man's organ pieces are widely and favorably known and some of his choral works and his Speculum Vitae for soprano and organ are seen on frequent programs. This new setting of The Lord's Prayer is musical and very simple; it ends broadly. Its weakness is Mr. Peeters' limited feel for the inflections of the English language: hal-low-ed be and Thy will be done, for example. This song is published for high, medium and low voice and in SATB and SSA arrangements.

Five wedding solos by Austin Lovelace will find wide use. Published separately by Abingdon Press in high and low voice they are short, undemanding and dignified. Their titles will suggest the character of their texts: Our Saviour, Guest Most Bounteous; Our Father, by Whose Name; O Ye Who Taste That Love Is Sweet; Jesus, Stand Beside Them, and O God of Love, to Thee We Bow.—FC tainier. Even for a non-professional person, the accounting charge for a tax return is deductible when it is itemized as "personal."

Dues to professional organizations are allowable. Remember to include your American Guild of Organist dues! In addition to professional societies, deduction is allowed for subscriptions to professional or technical journals (including THE DIAPASON) and the cost of professional equipment with a short useful life. Professional advertising incident thereto is allowable. Since tax letters and tax services are deductible to accountants, the expense of monthly music services and the like would seem to be reasonable. If you maintain a waiting room, periodicals placed there primarily for the patrons would be a deductible item.

If you are required to pay your substitute during your absence, the amount paid is a business expense. Where an annual substitute is employed and your regular salary is reduced, you need report as income the reduced salary.

Special deduction is allowed for the purchase of wardrobes, costumes, capes, wigs, and similar articles which are necessary for professional use. Deduction is allowed for estimated amounts spent for formal clothing and accessories, laundering, and dry cleaning, for professional musicians. Deduction was allowed for a motion picture actor for physical training expenses. While this might have been for Tarzan, it might contain some relevant fact comparable to your circumstances. Training for relaxation purposes only is non-deductible.

If your talents include writing, then most expenses incident thereto are deductible. This would include research expenses, including travel related thereto, the entertainment costs relative to gathering materials, and the subsequent expenses with agents, publishers, etc. Be prepared to prove the entertainment costs by maintaining a log record of what costs were incurred, when, and the persons involved.

If the relationship of the entertained persons to your writing is too vague, it may be denied. Remember you might be entitled to lump-sum compensation treatment of income of your composition if it took two years or more to complete, etc. by spreading the income back over prior years.

Many professionals use a portion of their home as an office or studio. You must determine an allocation of that portion which is business and that which is personal. This percentage is usually done on a square foot ratio used to the total in the home, or, using a fractional ratio, the numerator being the room(s) used, with the denominator being total rooms in the home. For computation of depreciation, you allocate that portion of the cost that the house bears to the cost of the house and lot. Only the home is subject to depreciation, usually at a rate computed on a life of 25 to 50 years, possibly faster if the residence is quite old. Furniture within the studio is depreciable, usually at 10% per annum. You will want to include piano, organ, harpsichord, tape recorders, desks, typewriters, duplicating machines, chairs, tables, music library (if not expensed earlier), etc. If you have never claimed depreciation on any depreciable item earlier, you have lost that earlier portion, as you are required to include in the depreciation schedule (Schedule C-1, Form 1040) in column 4, depreciation allowed earlier, or allowable in prior years. This does not preclude your now listing and depreciating assets purchased in earlier years, but the earlier years' depreciation are lost. To minimize the loss, you can lengthen the anticipated life of the old asset, so that the amount lost is smaller. Of course, that allows you a smaller current deduction on that item. If you have provided parking facilities for your patrons, the cost incident thereto may be depreciated on a life of from 7 to 10 years. Subject to excluding the personal portion ratio, the following examples are deductible as business household expenses: lights, water, heat, insurance, repairs, taxes, mortgage interest, and depreciation. The personal portion of the real estate taxes and mortgage interest is deductible as an itemized personal deduction. Expenses incurred directly within, or for your studio, would be fully deductible. This might include decorations, drapes, soundproofing (if over about $50, it should be depreciated), art objects, tuning and maintenance of instruments, etc.

If you attend concerts and recitals by fellow artists for purposes of self-evaluation, the total admission charge is deductible. Likewise, if travel is incurred, that would be deductible. Meals incident thereto are also, if you are gone overnight. This deduction does not mean that you may deduct all concerts—only those in which you have a genuine professional interest.

A sound system in your reception room or studio is a business asset, depreciable. This would include hi-fi, stereo, radio, tape recorder, etc. The purchase of records and tapes would be deductible. If the sound system doubles for your personal use, reduce your deduction by that percent. Judicious care should be exercised in accurately determining the strict professional use thereof, and not claiming that portion which is purely personal.

The above items cover to a certain extent the items which a non-salaried professional person may expect to deduct on Schedule 1040 C. It may also be used by a salaried person who had additional income not subject to withholding taxes. Many of these items related to the part-time church musician, who also teaches in his home, and to other persons as well. Sometimes the results of Schedule C are an eye-opener. Many never realize they operate at a loss until they see it on the tax return. The loss is deductible on the regular form 1040. Should the loss exceed your other income, this excess loss may be carried back two years, entitling you to a refund perhaps, or forward five years, and a reduction of future income. Consult your local CPA for assistance in this case. In addition, you might find your local CPA can save you tax dollars over his fee by merely correctly placing the same items differently on your tax return. When in doubt, certainly consult either the Internal Revenue Service or your local CPA.

Salaried Professional Deductions.

Generally, salaried professional musicians may deduct many of the above items, especially if spare-time tutoring is done (in which case file Schedule 1040 C). The main difference is that you can only list your expenses on page 2, Form 1040, as itemized personal deductions (assuming these and other personal deductions amount to 10% of your income). This is usually included in the section entitled "Other Deductions." However, substitute salary expenditures are proper deductions for page 1, line 5, Form 1040.

Deductible Personal Expenses.

This is the category which can afford you a great tax savings, or merely a big headache, or both. To aid the taxpayer, the government grants an automatic 10% deduction (limited to a maximum of $1,000) saving you the trouble of determining what the long form figures might reflect. In addition to the time savings, the Internal Revenue Service cannot require you to support the 10% claim.

In many cases, however, it is decidedly in your advantage to itemize your deductions, but be prepared to show how you determined the figures, if you are ever required to do so. The normal statute of limitations for the government's checking is three years, barring fraud. The mere fact that you, or your friends, have done thus-and-so for years on tax returns, does not mean that it is correct, possibly only their returns have not been checked. Each year more returns are subject to audit, so it is imperative that you maintain good records. Be careful to claim your deductions in the correct category—failure to do so may disallow it. The deductions which follow can be used only if you itemize on page 2, form 1040 or 1040 W.

Generally, married persons are ahead filing a joint return. If, however, you file separate returns for any of several reasons, remember that if one itemizes personal deductions, both are required to do so, which sometimes is not necessarily to their advantage.

Contributions.

Subject to limits, you may generally deduct gifts to religious, charitable, educational, scientific or literary organizations, and certain other groups. Likewise gifts to fraternal organizations may be deducted, but only to the extent that the gifts are used for charitable, religious, etc., purposes. Your gifts need not be in the form of cash, but may be in property. The value of the property given is its fair market value at the date of gift. It would be an assumption that the fair market value exceeds the cost. Be safe here, and ask the recipient for a letter stating its value. Your gift may be real estate, stocks or bonds, personal effects, etc. Consider giving a government bond (matured preferably) to the church. You paid $18.75 for the bond, and it is now worth $25. If you cash it and give the $25 you must report the $6.25 gain as income, and may deduct the $25. However, if you give the bond itself, you report no income, and may deduct the $25; therefore, you are ahead 25%. Contributions are deductible up to 20% of your Adjusted Gross Income, with an additional 10% if given to churches, educational, and certain types of hospitals. If you return your church salary, deduct it here as a gift, but watch for maximum limit.

You must list your gifts in order to claim them. The list may include such as follows: churches (including assessments and pew rentals), Salvation Army, United Fund, Community Chest, Red Cross, non-profit schools and hospitals, veterans organizations (when used for public purposes), Boy and Girl Scouts, non-profit organizations engaged in research and education, etc. of such diseases as tuberculosis, cancer, multiple sclerosis, muscular dystrophy, cerebral palsy, poliomyelitis, diabetes, and diseases of the heart, etc. Unreimbursed expenses to a qualified organization, such as travel expenses, including meals, lodging, and car expenses are in order. Deductions have also been allowed to such organizations as the following: organizations for constructing public parks or monuments, volunteer fire departments, cemeteries qualifying under Sec. 170(c)(5), trusts for making awards to citizens rendering conspicuous service, contributions to Daughters of American Revolution (while disallowed for dues in a court case), fair associations, college fraternity for supervision (denied if primarily social), alumni associations, endowment fund of American Legion, congressman for return of salary, National Guard officers for supplies and expenses when incurred for exclusively public purposes, Disabled Veterans, YMCA, YWHA, etc. Disallowed are such items as gifts to needy persons, contributions to clubs for helping defray sickness or burial expenses to members, to some Leagues of Women Voters (for influencing legislation), to State Hospital for reimbursement for case of person confined therein, for value of blood donated, as well as the value of personal services you might perform for any charity.

Interest.

In general, most interest payments are deductible when itemizing deductions. This would include interest paid to banks, loan companies, savings and loan associations, individuals, installment loans with business firms, etc. If you are unable to determine the exact interest, a deduction equal to 6% of the average monthly unpaid balance under the contract is allowed. Compute the average unpaid monthly balances by adding up the unpaid balances at the beginning of each month during the year and divide by 12. The interest deduction may not exceed the portion of the total carrying charge attributable to the taxable year. Remember to consider notes or mortgages on your home, equipment, car, personal notes, boats, TV, piano, organ, insurance loan, tape recorder, etc. Interest paid on money borrowed for purchase of tax exempt securities or single premium life insurance is non-deductible.

Taxes.

In itemizing deductions, most non-Federal taxes are deductible by you. All state and local taxes are deductible as taxes, except estate, inheritance, legacy, succession, gift taxes (which are not deductible at all), and assessments for local benefits (where special rules apply). Do not deduct Federal Income tax, self-employment tax, Federal estate taxes, or foreign taxes (which should be claimed only as a tax credit on Form 1116).

Deductions may include real estate and personal property taxes, state income tax, state and local retail sales tax, auto license fee (including operator's fee), poll taxes, cigarette tax, state gasoline taxes, etc. Do not deduct dog licenses, sewer and water charges, excise taxes on admissions, furs, jewelry, cosmetics, transportation, telephone, hunting licenses, or taxes paid by you for another. Consult your local IRS for amount of tax in your state on gasoline, as it varies from 3c to 11c per gallon. Local or state sales taxes vary from 2% to 4%. The IRA has just released suggested state sales tax deduction guide tables, by states, of what will be acceptable, normally without question. Greater amounts than these may be used if the taxpayer can prove his right to them. They are intended as guides for your income bracket. Cigarette taxes are imposed on consumers in several states, hence are deductible in varying amounts in Alabama, Connecticut, Florida, Maine, Massachusetts, Mississippi, Nebraska, New Hampshire, New Jersey, New York, Oklahoma, Pennsylvania, Rhode Island, South Dakota, Tennessee, and Vermont. Traffic or police fines are not taxes, hence not deductible (as they are violations of public policy).

Medical Expenses.

Too many rules exist regarding exclusions and special provisions to list all of them in an article of this type. General rules are stated herein, including the latest available rulings. First, divide medical expenses between medical-dental expenses, and medicine-drugs. Secondly, separate the two groups above again according to husband or wife (if 65 or over) from those of dependents. In addition, if a dependent mother or father of either the taxpayer or his wife is 65 or over, he or she qualifies for certain benefits. For dependent parents 65 or over, it is recommended that Form 2948 be used, as the Forms 1040 and 1040 W are ambiguous on this point.

Under medicine and drugs, list all qualifying items (usually by drug store or pharmacy), but do not include beauty aids, toothpaste, etc. A separate total must be maintained for this group. Then list doctor-medical expenses, including physicians, dentists, nurses, hospitals, eyeglasses, artificial limbs, braces, crutches, hearing devices, seeing-eye dogs and their maintenance, therapy treatments, X-ray, elastic stockings, special mattress for arthritic condition, air conditioner required for health or disease (not for comfort), oxygen equipment, special aids for children growing blind (tape recorder, special typewriter, etc.), transportation expenses to get medical care (exclude deductions for food and lodging except while within hospital), etc. This travel expense has been allowed even in crossing the continent to see a particular specialist. Cases exist where deduction was allowed for trips ordered by doctors, but the facts determine each. Taxi trips daily to see a doctor have been held deductible. Hospitalization, health, and accident insurance (including group policies) is deductible as a doctor bill. All medical expenses must be reduced by amounts reimbursed by insurance.

Medicine and drug expenses must be reduced by 1% of your adjusted gross income (which is line 11, page 1, form 1040). Any excess is added to the balance of the medical expenses. For taxpayers under 65, the accumulated total is reduced by 3% of the adjusted gross income. This is the net deductible medical expense. If either taxpayer or wife are 65 or over, they may ignore the 3% reduction. Likewise, if a dependent parent is 65 or over, the 3% rule is waived for that particular parent. There are certain maximum limits, varying from $2,500 to $10,000 for medical expenses. If these apply, seek professional advice.

Other Deductions.

Child care expenses up to $600 paid by a woman or widower (including men who are divorced or legally separated under a decree and who have not remarried) for the care of one or more dependents to enable taxpayer to be gainfully employed. For a married woman, it is available only if she files a joint return and reduces the deduction by any amount by which their combined adjusted gross income exceeds $4,500 (not applicable if husband is mentally or physically defective).

Deductions may be claimed for casualty losses which occurred during the year, such as fire, storm, auto accident, shipwreck, hurricane, or losses caused by natural forces. The amount of loss is determined by the fair market value of the property just before the casualty loss, less its fair market value after the casualty (but not more than the cost or other adjusted basis), reduced by any insurance received. Attach an itemized statement. If your losses exceeded your income, it is a net operating loss, subject to special provisions.

Expenses of education for self are deductible, as explained earlier. Deductions may be claimed for safety equipment, dues to unions or professional societies, entertaining customers, tools and supplies, employment agency fees, nurses' uniforms and cost incident thereto, telephone expenses (where required to be on call by employer), safe deposit box rental (where income producing securities are kept), accounting and legal fees re investments or tax returns, etc. All other ordinary and necessary expenses connected with the production or collection of income or management and protection of property held for income are deductible.

Certain alimony payments are deductible here (see regulations). You cannot deduct gambling losses, except to the extent they offset winnings, private club or organization dues, general or life insurance, travel to and from work, cost of meals at work, bribes, moving expenses, or entertainment of friends.

An interesting point in favor of the music and arts world exists in claiming of a child's deduction. To show more than half her support, the Mother used the provided music and dancing lessons, which was allowed in such determination as a necessary expense, includible with food, shelter, and clothing.

As a last point, for net earnings shown on Schedule 1040 C, remember that they are subject to self-employment tax (social security) at 4½% rate.

A PRIZE of $100 is offered for anthems for average church choirs by the Chapel Choir Conductors' Guild, Capital University, Columbus 9, Ohio; the contest closes Sept. 1.

SOUTHPORT CHURCH HEARS
LENTEN CHORAL PROGRAMS

The choir of men and boys of the Trinity Parish, Southport, Conn. will sing the Mozart Missa Brevis, K 275, March 12 with a string orchestra and organ. Raymond Harris, Yale school of music, will play the organ continuo and James Litton, organist and choirmaster will conduct, following an evensong service. Mr. Litton will also play four Mozart church sonatas.

The choir of the Southport Congregation Church, Robert Boyer organist and choirmaster, and the Trinity Chorale will sing the Schütz Seven Last Words and a group of Moravian anthems for Passiontide on a March 26 program in which the Trinity girls choirs will also participate and preceding which John Alves will play an organ recital.

ATLANTA CHURCH OFFERS ANNUAL CHORAL CONCERT

A trumpet trio and timpanist from Archer high school joined the choir in its annual concert Jan. 29 at Ebenezer Baptist Church, Atlanta, Ga. Hampton Z. Barker was director, David Crawford Stills organist and Wilhelmina H. Scretchin pianist in a program which featured Handel, Mozart, Vaughan Williams, Willan, Coke-Jephcott and arrangements of spirituals.

D. DEAN HUTCHISON, First Congregational Church, Portland, Ore. has become tonal consultant to the Rodgers Organ Company.

GAY PLAYS NOON SERIES AT CLEVELAND CATHEDRAL

A series of noonday organ recitals are being played each Tuesday at Trinity Cathedral, Cleveland, by Harry W. Gay, Ph.D. Featuring a wide range of organ literature from many periods and eras, the March recitals will contain, among other music, the Vierge Messe Basses March 7; Pieces on Pange Lingua by Boëly, de Grigny and David H. Williams March 14; the Maleingreau Symphony of the Mystic Lamb March 21, and excerpts from the Dupré Stations of the Cross and the Tournemire Seven Words March 28.

ANIMUCCIA MASS IS SUNG BY PALESTRINA SOCIETY

The Palestrina Society of Connecticut College, New London, sang the Missa Ave Maris Stella for mixed voices by the 16th century Florentine composer Giovanni Animuccia Jan. 22 in Harkness chapel. Devotions were conducted by the college chaplain and Arthur Quimby presided at the organ.

Founded 20 years ago by Paul F. Laubenstein, still its director, the society has comprised within its membership students, faculty and staff personnel and area residents.

GILES PLAYS, NIES-BERGER CONDUCTS IN RICHMOND, VA.

Hugh Giles will be organ soloist in the recently published Haydn concerto March 14 at St. Paul's Church, Richmond, Va. Edouard Nies-Berger, organist and choirmaster of the church, will conduct the string orchestra and choir in the concert which will also include: Concerto for strings and organ, Vivaldi-Natchez; Meditation on a Czech Carol, Suk; Nuances, Scriabine-Nies-Berger; Psalms 86 and 143, Holst, and choral works by Buxtehude, Gregor, Antes and Bach.

BACH'S St. John Passion of which part 1 was sung Feb. 26 will be concluded March 5 at St. Bartholomew's, New York City; the Fauré Requiem will be heard March 19 and the Lenten portion of Handel's Messiah March 26.

HEAR MONTREAL BACH CHOIR IN PROGRAM AT MCGILL U

The Montreal Bach Choir, George Little conductor, sang a concert Jan. 20 at Redpath Hall, McGill University. Programmed were: Five Chansons, Janequin; motets by Sweelinck, Victoria and Schütz; six songs of the Spanish Renaissance; Three Songs, Debussy; contemporary Canadian part songs by Lionel Greenberg, Otto Joachim and Kelsey Jones; French Canadian folk songs arranged by Francois Brassard, Violet Archer and Raymond Daveluy.

HEAR LARGE CHORAL WORKS AT METROPOLITAN CHURCH

Parts 1 and 2 of The Creation by Haydn were sung Jan. 29 by the choir of the Church of the Resurrection, New York City, under the direction of David Hewlett, organist and choirmaster; Dr. Samuel Walter was guest organist.

Mr. Hewlett directed Poulenc's Stabat Mater Feb. 26 with Dr. Walter again as organist; Amy Friedell conducted Duruflé's Requiem with Mr. Hewlett at the organ.

ENID WOODWARD CONDUCTS CLINIC IN MINNEAPOLIS

Enid M. Woodward, AAGO, Carleton College, conducted an organ clinic Feb. 6 for organists at Schmitt's Music Company, Minneapolis. She played excerpts from many works for the Lenten season and included short explanations of interpretation of ornaments, registration and hymn playing. A lively question and answer period followed.

NASHVILLE'S first performance of the Kodaly Missa Brevis was sung Jan. 22 by the 55-voice choir of the George Peabody College for Teachers, Dr. Robert Bays conducting; Come, Jesu, Come, Bach, Ave Maria, Rachmaninoff, and Hall Thou Gladdening Light, Gretchaninoff, were also heard.

NUNC DIMITTIS

JANE WHITTEMORE DIES; LONG PROMINENT IN AGO

Jane Whittemore, Hillside, N. J. died Feb. 3 at the Elizabeth General Hospital at the age of 80. A sister of Clark McK. Whittemore, late judge and banker, Miss Whittemore was prominent in music circles for many years.

A native of Elizabeth, N.J., she studied at the Wisconsin Conservatory, Milwaukee, at the Philadelphia Conservatory and at the Progressive Method normal school, St. Louis. While a member of the choir of St. John's Episcopal Church, Elizabeth, Miss Whittemore studied with Bauman Lowe and later with Lillian Carpenter.

Miss Whittemore served as organist for the Madison Avenue Presbyterian Church, the First Baptist Church, Elizabeth, and the First Presbyterian and First Baptist Churches, Roselle, N.J.

She was an honorary life member of the Metropolitan New Jersey AGO Chapter of which she was an organizer, and she served as state president and later as vice president of the National Association of Organists. The AGO and the NAO elected her their delegate to the British-American music conference at Lausanne, Switzerland. She was in charge of the Atwater-Kent music competitions in 11 cities for the five years they were held.

Miss Whittemore was an ardent lover of travel and often combined it with her love for music in trips all over Europe. She had an extensive music library which she made available to musicians.

J. WESLEY JONES

J. WESLEY JONES, for thirty-eight years director at the Metropolitan Community Church, Chicago, died Feb. 11 in Billings hospital at the age of 76. Choral director of the Chicagoland Music Festival for twenty-seven years, Mr. Jones directed large choruses in Orchestra Hall, at Navy Pier and at Soldiers' Field. He was one of the organizers of the National Association of Negro Musicians which awarded Marian Anderson her first scholarship.

A son of ex-slaves, Mr. Jones was born in Nashville, Tenn., in 1884. He was educated in the Tennessee School for Orphans and at Walden College, Nashville. He came to Chicago in 1920 and while working as a laborer organized a choir in a small Methodist mission. He went to the Metropolitan Church when it was newly organized. He worked for the postoffice for forty-one years, becoming the first Negro superintendent of a postoffice branch.

Mr. Jones was a member of the Chicago AGO Chapter and was a regular attendant at all chapter functions. Mrs. Jones and two daughters survive him.

OKLAHOMA CITY ORGANIST VICTIM OF HEART ATTACK

Mrs. J. S. Frank, Oklahoma City, died suddenly Jan. 4 of a heart attack. She was 70. An active organist for 46 years, she filled her last post at the First Presbyterian Church for 24 years and was organist emeritus at the time of her death.

A graduate of Oberlin Conservatory Mrs. Frank had extensive training in Chicago. She was an AGO member for 25 years and served two terms as dean of the Oklahoma City Chapter. She was an active member of many other musical organizations.

Mrs. Frank won 21 trophies and cups as tennis champion in Ohio and Oklahoma and played until the age of 50. She is survived by her husband, two sons, two brothers and a sister, Mrs. Everett L. Curtis, organist emeritus at St. Luke's Methodist Church, Oklahoma City, Okla.

MILDRED DRENNING DIES AT 81; KANSAS AGO PIONEER

Mildred Hazelrigg Drenning, Topeka, Kans. veteran organist, died Feb. 4 from a head injury received in a fall Nov. 8 on her return from voting. She was 81. First AGO member in the state of Kansas, she had held every office in the Kansas Chapter. Her membership in the Guild dated from 1913.

A graduate of Kansas State College, Emporia, and of the University of Kansas, she was organist in the First Christian Church, Topeka, for 46 years. On her retirement in 1951 THE DIAPASON ran a detailed account of her career.

Married to a prominent attorney, she had travelled widely. She was a native of Napoleon, Ind.

First Performer Views Sonata by Persichetti

By RUDOLPH KREMER

To help celebrate the 50th anniversary of the St. Louis AGO Chapter, members decided to commission a new work for organ. A committee was selected for the task of finding a well-known composer who would be interested in composing an organ work and the final result is the Sonata for Organ, Op. 85, by Vincent Persichetti. This new work was given its first performance at the St. Louis midwinter convalesce Dec. 28. This writer was requested to play the work a second time for convalesce visitors at the session in Graham chapel, Washington University.

Mr. Persichetti has visited Washington University as a lecturer and two years ago he was commissioned to compose a symphony for the St. Louis Symphony Orchestra. This work, his Liturgical Symphony, was given its premiere in the orchestra's 1959-60 series.

The committee in charge of commissioning the new organ work placed only one restriction on the composer: that the work be at least seven minutes long, so that it could be featured as a work of significant proportions on a program. Mr. Persichetti was offered the commission last summer and, fortunately for us, he accepted. In his letter dated Aug. 7, 1960 he writes: "I have cleared time for writing the organ work you suggested. I feel very close to the musical life of St. Louis and am happy that I will be able to do the work for you."

Apparently Mr. Persichetti became engrossed in his Sonata, judging from another letter which came from him toward the end of August. He writes: "I have been working for the past two weeks on an organ sonata. I have dropped other work for the moment so that I can concentrate solely on this. It will be slightly longer than seven minutes and certainly ready well before November."

The Sonata has three movements and is twice the length specified as minimum by the committee. The first movement is an Allegro with a slow introduction. Larghetto is the indication at the beginning of the second movement, and the last movement is a fast Vivace with a few slightly slower passages. A superficial analysis reveals that the first and last movements are in sonata form, the middle movement in simple song form. Perhaps of greater interest is the fact that the work has strong cyclic characteristics. For example the secondary theme of the last movement immediately calls to mind the slow introduction to the first movement.

The melodies throughout the work are delightfully tuneful and the Sonata as a whole is alive with rhythmic interest. It is in a predominantly contrapuntal style with much imitation and is pleasantly striking in several clearly polytonal sections.

The organ is not a new medium for

FONTAINEBLEAU SESSION TO BE 40TH ANNIVERSARY

This summer's session of the schools of music and fine arts held at the Palace of Fontainebleau, France, marks the 40th anniversary of this institution which has been so influential in promoting and cementing artistic relations between the French and the Americans. Intended for "practicing American artists," the school has Robert Casadesus as general director. André Marchal will conduct master classes in organ and Nadia Boulanger will head the organ department and will teach the many courses in musical construction of special interest to our readers.

The American office is at 122 East 58th Street, New York 22, N.Y. and Myra Davis is executive secretary.

Persichetti. His Sonatine for Organ Pedals Alone, Op. 11, is well known to organists as one of the most successful ventures in writing for pedal solo in such a manner as to produce a work which has musical value. In such a work there need be no problem of registration since the hands are free to push and pull continuously if it should be necessary. However, the restraint shown by Persichetti in his pedal solo work demonstrates his knowledge of the fact that the organ is an instrument which lends itself to terraced color changes.

In the new Sonata the same intelligent handling of the organ is evident. There is ample opportunity for color change in the places where it is required, and helpful registration suggestions are given by the composer. Fortunately, one looks in vain for a fearful gradual crescendo to full organ or the reverse. This work is soon to be published by the Elkan-Vogel Company of Philadelphia.

TELLERS INSTALLED IN DUNKIRK CHURCH

ST. HYACINTH'S CATHOLIC

Robert Po-Chedley Designs Three-Manual Instrument for Gallery of Newly Constructed Edifice in Upstate New York City

The recently completed St. Hyacinth's Roman Catholic Church, Dunkirk, N. Y. is the home of a three-manual Tellers organ installed by Robert B. Po-Chedley whose Buffalo firm also drew up the tonal specification and the frontal design. The instrument will occupy space across the rear of the gallery with great pipes exposed in the center section and the balance behind a casefront of standing louvers.

Some of the existing Felgemaker pipe-work was revoiced for the new specification. The frontal design and the tonal plan were executed by Mr. Po-Chedley. The stoplist is as follows:

*Wide Choral Variety
 Includes Many Hymn Anthems*

The hymn anthem is ever with us and must be serving a useful purpose or it would not be such a best-seller. All too few hymn anthems, we fear, are anything more than the most elementary juggling from the hymnal which even a reasonably well-trained and experienced church musician could excel with a few instructions written on a blackboard or even dictated. (We have seen these spur-of-the-moment things come off stunningly both in Canada and in the United States.) The hymn anthem in the hands of a genuine creative musician enhances its original material (which such a creator has usually selected with care) and in so doing makes both a musical and a practical contribution. We have the strong conviction that the excessive use of the hymn anthem device can wear very thin very quickly with most congregations and, without being asked, would counsel restraint.

We do not feel, for example that George Lynn has enhanced the two threadbare gospel tunes in his Abingdon Press Are Ye Able? and I Need Thee Ev'ry Hour merely by modulating a bit and rising to a high, loud ending in the first one; his Come Let Us Use the Grace Divine is slightly better. Nor is Francis Westbrook's Better Than You There? a major improvement over the several hymn book versions. On the other hand G. Winston Cassler's Holy, Holy, Holy! does have something to add to the original that is not mere sugar frosting for an empty carton.

We suppose a denominational publisher such as Abingdon has to try to play the Aesop character of the fable of the man, his son and the donkey. And this publisher does make excursions into more promising territory with Lloyd Pfautsch's not easy The Temptation of Christ; Austin Lovelace's quiet Easter Come to the Tomb; T. Frederick H. Candlyn's A Song of Rejoicing, based on Handel and largely unison; Robert Powell's Jesus Name of Wondrous Love, in two parts, men versus women; Joseph Roff's easy Lift Up Your Heads, for Palm Sunday; David Wehr's Ah, Dearest Jesus, largely unison and block harmony; Philip Dietterich's SAB O Love That Triumphs Over Loss; Lawrence Curry's "brotherhood" anthem, Break, Day of God, and a small Schütz unison excerpt arranged by C. Buell Agey as Give unto the Lord, Oh Ye Mighty.

Seven of a set of nine unaccompanied motets by Bernard Naylor have been sent us by Novello. They are for the various seasons of the church year and are so titled. Those so far received are all in modern counterpoint with division of voices and assume facile, highly-trained musicianship. Heathcote Statham's Ye That Know the Lord Is Gracious is a good solid English anthem. We are a little at a loss to account for a British interest in Negro spirituals sufficient to justify a musician of Gordon Jacob's calibre in arranging "They Crucified My Lord." Basil Ramsey has attached some very familiar hymn words to Tchaikowsky's Hymn to the Trinity under the title Holy, Holy, Holy! Lord God Almighty!

For treble voices Novello sends an interesting Magnificat and Nunc Dimittis in E minor for boys voices and organ by Richard Drakeford. His boys, obviously, can count, keep their places against independent accompaniment and sail up to high A. Sure there is no crying need for another SA of Wesley's Lead Me, Lord; Desmond Ratcliffe has a new one. The SS Corfe anthem I Will Magnify Thee, O Lord, edited by Derek Holman, would make a good sound in boy voices but Mary Chandler's Glory Be to God for Dappled Things has a text which does not "get through" to us, we are sorry to say.

Concordia's new list contains a set of three anthems by Healey Willan for a choir in Missouri; they are a good example of Dr. Willan's intelligent concern for the volunteer choir. Appropriate for church dates just ahead they are: Behold the Lamb of God; Christ Is Risen, Alleluia!, and God Is Gone Up with a Shout. A Holy Week Response, Ingegneri-Gore, utilizes a trio of treble soloists plus a mixed choir. Austin Lovelace has arranged an Out of the Depths by Charpentier; effective and not difficult, it has division in the tenor part. Other editings include Karl Geiringer's of a big Haydn We Seek Not, God Our Lord, for Glory (originally Non Nobis, Domine); a Vulpus Isaiiah, Mighty Seer in Days of Old which expands to seven parts; and a Leland Sateren of a Viadana motet with the title Sing, Ye Righteous.

Ludwig Lenel's curious and interesting round Arise and Be Not Afraid (still Concordia) will probably look frighteningly complex; it really is not but it is fairly demanding. Not so Joseph Roff's Bestow Thy Spirit upon Us or S. Drummond Wolff's Love of the Father. A set of three hymn settings by Carl Schalk for the Lutheran hour are simple and effective: God of Mercy, God of Grace; The King of Love My Shepherd Is, and O Love How Deep. Continuing the work on The Formulary Tones in the major volume issued recently, Concordia this month offers Prose for Lent and Have Mercy on Me, prepared by Paul Bunjes. Mr. Bunjes also has available another of those "chorale concertatos"—this one on the Palm Sunday All Glory, Laud and Honor, for congregation, choir, organ and trumpet.

In Concordia's list not for SATB are two SABs by Richard Wienhorst: Christ Lay in Death's Strong Bonds and Come, Holy Ghost; and a TTBB If Ye Love Me of Thomas Tallis arranged by Hewitt Pantaleoni.

A new Westminster Press collection, Anthems for the Adult Choir, edited by W. Lawrence Curry, is not the usual rehash but is entirely fresh material of very moderate difficulty and considerable variety.

Admirers of Roy Ringwald will want to see his new cantata with carols called A Celebration of Easter (Shawnee Press). About two-thirds original material with nine arranged melodies, it has the usual Ringwald choral skill, but he has not.

we think, achieved another Song of Christmas here.

Also from Shawnee are a set of hymn anthems, some for combined choirs. Where the original hymn itself is strong, it helps carry the arrangement even in the face of superfluous modulation, descants and other tools of the trade. Combined choir arrangements include: O Saviour Blest by Wihla Hutson; I Love Thee, My Lord by James D. Cram, and We Gather Together by Wallace Hornbrook. There is an SSAB by Mr. Hornbrook of Immortal, Invisible. Warren Angell's original Great Is the Lord has optional trumpet duet; Robert Graham's Lenten Our Master Lies Asleep is based on a Christina Rossetti poem. Houston Bright's SSA Four Sacred Songs for the Night are of considerable musical worth and might find a welcome place on a program of a woman's choral group. Arthur Frackenpohl's Three Easter Carols are available both SATB and SA; in frank imitation of folk idioms, they are bright and tuneful and highly suitable to the Easter season (The World Itself Keeps Easter Day; The Whole Bright World Rejoices Now; God Is Ascended Up on High).

The Marks offerings this month are mostly editings of standard works largely available for some time in other editions. They include three movements of the little G major Mass by Schubert (Kyrie, Agnus Dei, Gloria) with Latin text only; the Sanctus from the Mozart Missa Brevis in D; Lacrymosa from the Cherubini Requiem; two Haydn—Sing with Joy and Gladness and the Sanctus from the Mass in B flat—and the Schubert Twenty-third Psalm for treble voices. Two originals are: Joseph Roff's Peace to This House, largely block harmony with a big ending, and Marcel Frank's SSA Song of the Little Lamb.

A single from World Library of Sacred Music is They Shall Rise Up as Eagles by Harold Clayton, a sizable a cappella piece whose shifting tonality and varied measure lengths presuppose musicianship. The texture itself is not complex.—FC

CROZIER FEATURED ARTIST FOR SERIES AT ROLLINS

Catharine Crozier opened the annual series of organ vespers Jan. 4 in Knowles Memorial Chapel, Rollins College, Winter Park, Fla. The series continued through the month of February and featured a number of guest artists including Gordon Wilson, organist. In two of the programs Miss Crozier used the harpsichord.

The final program included sonatas by Purcell and Boyce with harpsichord and by Mozart with organ. A group of English composers for organ and the Mozart Fantasie in F minor completed the program.

RICHARD E. PHIPPS directed a performance of Mendelssohn's Elijah, part 2, Jan. 29 at the First Baptist Church, Muncie, Ind.

VALPARAISO U WILL HOLD SEMINAR AFTER EASTER

The sixteenth annual Valparaiso, Ind. University church music seminar will be held on the university campus the first weekend after Easter. It will open April 6 with a concert by the University-Civic orchestra and will close with a festival service April 9 in Memorial chapel. Sessions will feature lectures, round table discussion, choral demonstrations and recitals on the new Schlicker organ.

Participating will be the Westphaelische Kantorei from Herford, Germany, under the direction of Dr. Wilhelm Ehmann. Dr. Ehmann will give a lecture with demonstrations by his choir of 16th and 17th century choral and instrumental music. The Kantorei will sing a concert in Memorial chapel April 8.

Also participating in the programs will be choirs from the university and from Concordia Teachers College, River Forest, Ill.

MIAMI U HEARS PROGRAM FOR ORGAN AND ORCHESTRA

Eugene Hill was organist and Adon Foster conductor in a Miami University program of music for organ and orchestra Jan. 15 at the Holy Trinity Episcopal Church, Oxford, Ohio. The orchestral ensemble was assisted by Nancy Morrison, soprano, Robert Stofer, organist, and the Oxford string quartet in a program which included Trio Sonata for strings and organ Opus 3, Corelli; Organ Concerto 4 in F, Handel; Cantata Pastorale for the Nativity of Our Lord, Scarlatti; Canzona, Felix Gethen, and Dr. Hill's Concertino for organ, strings and timpani.

MRS. NELSON ASSUMES NEW POST IN TOLEDO CHURCH

Mary Cheyney Nelson has been named organist and choir director of St. Michael's in the Hills Episcopal Church, Toledo, Ohio. She received her bachelor of music degree from the Westminster Choir College and later studied organ with Flor Peeters. She has served churches in Virginia, West Virginia, Pennsylvania and Massachusetts and has taught at the Hampton Institute in Virginia.

Mrs. Nelson's husband, Dr. Boris E. Nelson, is the director of the division of fine arts of the University of Toledo.

AN AUDIENCE of 3,000 attended a ballet concert Jan. 22 at the Ford auditorium, Detroit on which Phillip Steinhilber was organ soloist with the Detroit symphony orchestra in the Poulenc concerto.

THE 50-VOICE Southwestern University choir, Georgetown, Tex., will give 12 concerts between Feb. 1 and March 12; Dean John D. Richards is director.

PETER J. WILHOUSKY
1961 Master Class
In Choral Conducting
July 10-14 at AIR-CONDITIONED
JUDSON HALL
165 West 57th St. New York City

For the 9th consecutive year, Dr. Peter J. Wilhoucky, internationally known Choral Director and Conductor, will hold his summer Master Class in New York . . . Five (5) compact sessions of valuable information about all facets of choral conducting. Don't miss it!

5 Days—10 A.M. to 1 P.M.—only $30.00

What a rewarding opportunity to combine stimulating study with the summer magic of a vacation in New York! Discover for yourself why Dr. Wilhoucky is recognized as one of the world's foremost authorities on choral conducting and public school music. Hear him first hand discuss the techniques that have made him an acknowledged master in this field. Whether you are an experienced choral director or teacher, let him help you solve the problems that are confronting you. Hear him personally outline valuable suggestions that will help you develop and expand the voices of your chorus—whether amateur or experienced. And what could be more appealing than to attend these sessions in the "Summer Festival" atmosphere of New York. What an exciting and satisfying combination!

HERE ARE SOME OF THE IMPORTANT POINTS THAT DR. WILHOUSKY WILL COVER:

- How to generate enthusiasm and produce the desire to sing.
 - How to analyze the vocal possibilities of each student and assign him to the appropriate section.
 - How to teach the students to sing without physical effort or strain, to always produce a beautiful tone and develop clear and natural enunciation.
 - How to help the students feel and understand the emotional significance and rhythmical structure of the composition.
 - How to choose effective and appropriate choral literature.
- In addition, there'll be time to discuss your own personal choral group problems. Make your reservation now! Fill out this coupon and mail it today.
